Elk Grove's only female Kiwanian quits in dispute

by JILL BETTNER

Mary Clark resigned Tuesday from the Elk Grove Kiwanis after the results of a secret-ballot showed the male members wanted to deny her the right to become an officer of the group.

Kiwanis members voted on the resolution to accord Miss Clark a conditional membership last week in an 11th-hour effort to keep Miss Clark in the club and retain their charter. Kiwanis International threatened to dissolve the local club if Miss Clark, the only female member, was not dropped by today in accordance with the all-male rule of the organization.

Kiwanis Pres. Richard Harrell said Tuesday a majority of the voting members approved the resolution in a mail balloting. They also agreed, Harrell said, to seek an amendment to the Kiwanis bylaws to eliminate sex discrimination at the international convention next summer.

MISS CLARK said she felt she "would have been letting women and myself down" by accepting the conditional membership.

"Throughout this issue I never intended to accept a reduced status, "Miss Clark said. "It's a status that is not provided for in the Kiwanis constitution or bylaws. I want my status to be defined — I don't want to expend my energies in a club that I have no real role in."

In her letter of resignation, effective immediately, Miss Clark said she was recruited and inducted into full membership in Kiwanis and would accept nothing less.

"When I joined Kiwanis a year ago, it was with bright hopes of serving the community and I have enjoyed working with my fellow Kiwanians on projects to benefit Elk Grove Village," Miss Clark said in the letter.

"I am unable to accept your requirement that I step down from active membership and accept 'special status' until the national reevaluates its attitude toward women."

HARRELL REFUSED comment on Miss Clark's resignation until he received a copy of her letter. He did say, however, that the local chapter would not drop its fight to change the all-male Kiwanis rule.

"We'll stick by the resolution and work for an amendment at the international convention next June in Atlanta, Ga.," Harrell said. "The resolution was a compromise, but we were willing to go that route to try to get the bylaws changed."

Miss Clark said she could understand the thought behind the resolution, but couldn't stay in the club as a restricted member.

"I respect their wish to remain in Kiwanis International since part of the resolution is that they will fight from within — it's a legitimate and democratic approach. Unfortunately, I cannot accept the compromise," she said.

The Elk Grove club first voted to back Miss Clark after receiving the directive to oust her or lose its charter almost a month ago. A Great Neck, N.Y., club is supporting a lawsuit by five women against the international, which dissolved the chapter there for admitting them. The suit charges the Kiwanis bylaws violate a state human rights act.

Villages' fund picture not so bleak

by JOHN MAES

Buffalo Grove officials said Tuesday the village can make it through the remainder of the current fiscal year without borrowing additional money as was originally feared.

Officials predicted a few months ago that a second set of tax warrants, in addition to the $140,000 worth sold on the 1973 tax levy, would have to be sold to meet payroll and operating expenses between now and April 30.

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said Tuesday, however, receipts of building revenues have picked up and the village has continued to tighten the belt on spending.

"We've held back on a lot of expenses and curtailed a lot of programs and purchases of equipment," Larson said. "We're in a position to enter the next fiscal year with sufficient funds to meet all programs, salary demands and operating demands."

HE SAID THE village "had guessed back in August that in November or December we might have to get additional tax anticipation warrants, but we won't have to for the rest of the fiscal year."

In discussing the village financial picture, Larson also said property tax revenues will come in earlier next year due to changes in tax collection procedure in Cook and Lake counties.

Delayed property taxes from both counties has been a major cause of financial trouble in Buffalo Grove, he said.

Larson said the changes mean the tax bills will be going out "on time" next year. The village therefore will receive an estimated $190,000 in property tax revenue in March.

He also said fees for building permits and engineering are continuing to come

Stavros ill? Moved to federal prison in Kentucky

Convicted political boss James Stavros has been transferred from the federal prison at Sandstone, Minn., to the federal prison at Lexington, Ky., for medical reasons.

Stavros, former Wheeling Township Democratic committee who pleaded guilty April 30 to extorting $92,000 from three Wheeling developers and filing a false income tax return, was transferred Nov. 2.

The reason for the medical transfer was unknown as Lexington prison officials were unavailable for comment and Sandstone Warden L. R. Puttman said he could not remember.

A spokesman for the Federal Bureau of Prisons in Washington said the Lexington prison facilities are for prisoners with chronic medical problems and drug or alcohol problems.

Each prison is of the minimum-security type.

Stavros was sentenced to a four-year prison term June 4 by U.S. District Court Judge Hubert Will. The U.S. Attorney's office dropped eight additional charges against Stavros, including alleged extortions totaling $121,250.

Inflation muscling into classrooms?

by BOB GALLAS

America's No. 1 nemesis — inflation — is chewing away at the budgets of suburban school districts, but until now business managers have managed to keep inflated costs from affecting what goes on between teacher and pupil in the classroom.

But if inflation keeps rising at its present rate, in the words of one business manager, "We're in big trouble."

By changing buying habits, looking for bargains and buying one brand to take advantage of discounts, the schools are staying even with inflated prices.

While all local districts are smarting from the dollar crunch, those that still have to keep building schools to accommodate more students are the hardest hit.

Construction costs are soaring at a rate far above the inflation rate, in some instances certain material costs have risen as much as 750 per cent in a year.

Some examples:

- Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 decided to "save money" by doing a $350,000, five-year roof repair plan all in one year to beat inflation. Six months after the estimate was made, the bids came in for the whole project and ranged from $500,000 to $1 million. Part of the increase was due to the cost of roofing tar, which has risen from $40 to about $300 for a 55-gallon drum in one year, a 750 per cent increase.
- Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 felt "lucky" when it contracted to buy 15 per cent more paper than the amount it purchased two years earlier. The price however, was 93 per cent higher. Despite a signed contract, the firm later contacted the district to say the price will go up another 12 cents a ream, "take it or leave it."

"We could sue, but then we wouldn't have any paper," said Marvin Lapicola, district assistant superintendent of finance.

A five-year plan for construction in Dist. 54 called for $16.5 million in buildings. Now inflation has driven up the cost for the same buildings to near $20 million, Lapicola said.

One of the fastest-growing elementary districts in the Midwest, Dist. 54 has no choice but to keep building, since it needs 30 to 40 new classrooms every year, Lapicola said.

BY HOLDING THE line on expenses and cutting some expenses in noninstructional areas, business managers are trying o stay even with inflation in some cases, while some are buying less and making up for the shortage by using materials more wisely: Both sides of paper are used, less memos are sent out, children do school projects with materials from home.

Nevertheless, some districts have supply budgets that already are nearly exhausted.

"Our budget is closer to being fully expended more now than last year at this same time," said Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent for administrative services at Elk Grove Township Dist. 59. "Some budgets are exhausted for the entire year — and it's only November," said Perry.

Perry is concerned that the $15 million budget will come up $100,000 short instead of having money left over, which has been the case in recent years.

ENERGY CONSERVATION techniques that were around last winter due to the fuel shortage will be around again this year in school districts, but for a defferent reason. Districts will be keeping thermostats low and lights off where possible to save fuel, but more importantly, to keep cost down.

At least one district is changing its buying habits in an

OK $336,000 grant for bus company

United Motor Coach Co. of Des Plaines was given a $336,000 grant Tuesday by the Regional Transportation Authority to keep the ailing bus firm in operation until the end of the year. The RTA board approved a $336,218 grant for United Motor Coach and a similar emergency grant totaling $449,136 for South Suburban Safeway Lines, another financially troubled bus company. The grant is intended to sustain United Motor Coach until Dec. 31, when the firm is expected to be purchased by the North Suburban Mass Transit District. United will use the funds to meet payrolls, repay operating loans and pay insurance premiums. John Hanck, United Motor Coach president, said the company would have been unable to meet its payroll this week without the grant. He said the money will be adequate to keep the bus lines operating until the end of the year.

Volunteers hear Scout chief

Chicago area Girl Scout volunteers and executives gathered at the Marriott Motor Hotel Tuesday night to hear Marjorie Ittmann, national president of Girl Scouts of USA, speak on the "Challenge of Change" and its impact upon the 125,000 Girl Scouts residing in Metropolitan Chicago. More than 800 guests attended the event. Mrs. Ittmann is a guest of the Northwest Cook Girl Scout Council. Chairman of the dinner was Village Pres. Virginia Hayter of Hoffman Estates. "That old familiar cartoon of a small Girl Scout or Boy Scout guiding a feeble old lady across the street, clearly needs updating," Mrs. Ittmann said. "The great challenge is to reflect learnings of the past, to feel the excitement and joy of full involvement in today and to share in the challenge of building a tomorrow that is better than today or yesterday." Mrs. Ittmann of Cincinnati was elected president of the 3 million-member Girl Scout organization in 1972.

Stavros getting medical care

Convicted Wheeling political boss James Stavros was transferred from the federal prison at Sandstone, Minn., to the federal prison in Lexington, Ky. for medical reasons. Stavros, former Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman, who pleaded guilty April 30 to extorting more than $92,000 from three Wheeling developers and filing a false income tax return was transferred Nov. 2. The exact nature of his medical problems were not available from Lexington officials and Stavros' former warden, L. R. Puttman could not remember.

Schools reject tax-hike plan

The Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education has rejected a plan to seek a 6 to 30 per cent hike in district real estate taxes. The move, however, does not block out the chances that a tax hike still is a "probability" in Dist. 59's future. Any such hike would have to be approved in a voter referendum and is estimated that the increase could be from 15 to 70 cents per $100 assessed valuation . . . The present tax rate in Dist. 59 is about $2.30 per $100 assessed valuation.

$1,000 for Hersey trip

The Village of Arlington Heights will spend $1,000 to help send the Hersey High School Marching Band to the Rose Bowl Parade, New Year's Day, in Pasadena, Calif. The band now has $43,000 of the $52,000 it needs to make the trip to the Tournament of Roses parade, where it will be the first Illinois high school band to appear at the event in more than 25 years.

Evicted tenant arrested

Patricia Bunner of Des Plaines was charged with criminal trespassing Tuesday when she returned to the apartment from which she and her four children were evicted earlier in the day. She was trying to retrieve personal belongings through a window when she was arrested. Mrs. Bunner refused to post bond and police said if she continues to refuse she will be jailed.

Panel OKs ethics law

An ordinance setting ethical standards for Palatine's elected, appointed and administrative officials and candidates for village office has been approved by a village board committee. The ordinance, which states that none of the above mentioned can hold stock in any bank or financial institution authorized to accept deposits of village funds, now only needs village board approval. A similar ethics legislation adopted for the Palatine plan commission and zoning board of appeals already has resulted in three resignations. If the proposed law is approved, failure to comply with it will result in a fine of not more than $500.

Lottery could lose $10.4 million due to radio-TV ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Illinois Lottery Supt. Ralph Batch testified Tuesday federal regulations on state lotteries will cause Illinois to lose an estimated $10.4 million annually.

"Current federal restrictions prohibit state-run lotteries from using the same promotional and business methods that any other business or corporation in the state may use," he said.

"It has been estimated that at current levels, the state of Illinois will lose more than $10.4 million annually because it cannot use the available communications media — radio and television."

BATCH GAVE the testimony before a federal commission reviewing the national policy toward gambling. Radio and TV stations are allowed to broadcast only minimal information on the Lottery.

Because of federal regulations prohibiting use of the mails to promote lotteries, all promotional material in Illinois is delivered by private carrier, Batch said. That costs $97,000 for a single delivery to all Illinois sales agents, he said.

And he said an estimated 2,500 Lottery prizes go unclaimed each week because people don't understand they have won anything. Through broadcast media, Batch said, more people could understand the game better.

"The Lottery is indeed a multimillion-dollar business, yet it is hampered by legislation made to regulate lotteries of 100 years ago," he said.

BATCH SAID A POLL taken in Cook, Kane, DuPage, McHenry, Will and Lake counties six weeks after the Illinois Lottery began showed 80 per cent of the people approved of the Lottery.

The poll showed 48 per cent of those interviewed had bought tickets within a week of the poll, and 72 per cent said they bought tickets at some time.

"Found throughout these polls is the comment that people believe that Lottery income to the state will keep their taxes from rising," Batch said.

Senior citizen bus to visit shop centers

The Elk Grove Township senior citizen bus will make scheduled trips to both the Randhurst Shopping Center and the Woodfield Shopping Center during the next five weeks.

Randhurst runs will take place Wednesday and Friday this week, Nov. 22, Nov. 26, Nov. 29, Dec. 3, Dec. 5, Dec. 9, Dec. 11, Dec. 13, Dec. 17 and Dec. 19. On these days the bus also will drop off seniors at the Mount Prospect Plaza Shopping Center at Rand Road and Central Avenue.

Trips to Woodfield will take place today and Thursday this week, Nov. 25, Nov. 27, Dec. 2, Dec. 4, Dec. 6, Dec. 10, Dec. 12, Dec. 16, Dec. 18 and Dec. 20.

The trips to Randhurst and Woodfield are the only authorized out-of-township runs the bus may make. All other commuting is done within the township limits.

The bus service is free to all township senior citizens 65 and older and reservations may be made by calling 437-0300.

FEA asked to cut price of gasoline

Consumers Union asked the government Tuesday to lift a three cents per gallon price hike approved last winter, saying it is needlessly costing motorists $3 billion a year. The organization said the increase approved by the Federal Energy Administration may have been justified when supplies were short; but they are now at record levels, and prices have not fallen accordingly.

Senate OKs aid to urban transit systems

With strong support from President Ford, and after intensive lobbying by big-city mayors, the Senate Tuesday approved the nation's most far-reaching program for federal aid to urban mass transit systems. The $11.8 billion package, fashioned by the administration and congressional negotiators, remained threatened by a procedural squabble in the House.

Greyhound riders hunt transportation

Thousands of stranded bus riders scrambled to find alternate transportation Tuesday in the second day of a nationwide walkout over wage hike demands by 16,000 drivers and other employes of Greyhound Bus Lines. In Chicago, Amtrak reported unusually heavy train traffic. A spokesman said Amtrak will accept Greyhound tickets for the duration of the strike.

GAO: armed men could seize nuclear plant

A small group of armed men — as few as two or three — could seize a nuclear power plant and release radioactive materials into the neighboring areas, a government report warned Tuesday. The GAO told Dixy Lee Ray of the Atomic Energy Commission that security needs to be improved.

Nixon consents to physical exam by panel

Lawyers for former President Richard Nixon said he has consented to a physical examination by a court-appointed panel of doctors "if they really feel it is necessary" to determine his ability to give testimony in the Watergate coverup trial. At the trial, meanwhile, a tape revealed that Nixon, convinced John Mitchell was "not gonna make it anyway," once ordered a top aide to pressure him to take full blame for Watergate and draw attention away from the White House.

Rocky confirmation delayed in Senate

Senate action on Nelson Rockefeller's nomination as vice president may be delayed until after Thanksgiving, Senate Democrat leader Mike Mansfield said Tuesday. There were indications, however, that the House was speeding its efforts to bring the nomination to a vote before Christmas.

Mental exam ordered for embassy gunman

A mental examination was ordered Tuesday for Napoleon Lechoco, a Filipino gunman who held the Philippine ambassador and an aide hostage at their embassy in Washington until he received assurance of a trip from Manila to the U.S. for his teenage son. Chief U.S. District Court Judge George Hart ordered the examination and refused to allow bail.

Oil industry influence surprises Sawhill

John C. Sawhill, outgoing federal energy administrator, said Tuesday the oil industry exerts much more influence in Washington than he had imagined. Sawhill also told a Joint Economic Committee hearing that some big oilmen even admitted they lobbied for his ouster.

Group to press for branch banking

The Association for Modern Banking in Illinois said Tuesday it will again press to legalize branch banking when the legislature convenes in January. Report: business site inspections poor

A report issued recently by the U.S. Labor department concludes that Illinois is doing a poor job of inspecting business sites for job hazards that could lead to employe injuries or deaths. The 189-page report, prepared by the occupational safety and health unit within the department, also concluded that many of the state's inspectors are not qualified for their jobs.

One-day strike disrupts France

French workers, heeding union calls for a one-day general strike, disrupted much of the nation's activity Tuesday as an estimated 200,000 demonstrators marched in Paris. The strike by union members demanding higher wages and job security disrupted transportation, radio and television, hospital, bank, school and utilities.

Stock prices plunge again

Prices plunged for the third consecutive session Tuesday in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange with investors increasingly worried about an American recession and prospects of a Middle East war. The Dow Jones average dropped 10.95 to 613.97, bringing its two-day loss to 33.64 points. Standard & Poor's index fell 1.07 to 68.20. The average price of an NYSE common share declined by 37 cents. Israel vows to eliminate terrorists

BEIT SHEAN, Israel (UPI) — With eight persons killed in the latest Arab guerrilla raid on this town near the Sea of Galilee, Defense Minister Shimon Peres pledged Tuesday that Israeli armed forces would hunt down Arab terrorists until "the last one of them is eliminated."

Anti-Israeli raids broke out in occupied East Jerusalem for the second day Tuesday and Arab high school girls threw rocks at Israeli police until police drove them back with streams of green-dyed water from water cannon and arrested 30 of them. There were other anti-Israeli demonstrations on the West Bank for the seventh consecutive day.

Israeli officials said three Arab guerrillas armed with Soviet, made automatic rifles and hand grenades seized a three-story apartment house in this town near the Jordanian frontier but were shot to death by Israeli commandos who stormed the building four hours later. Five Israelis also died.

Another 22 persons, mostly children suffered minor injuries when they leaped from windows in the stone apartment house. Witnesses said that after the shooting stopped enraged neighbors and tenants threw the bodies of the guerrillas, one headless, out of the window. The bodies were doused with gasoline and set afire.

In Damascus, the Marxist Popular Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine claimed responsibility for the attack and vowed the guerrillas would "continue to strike at the enemy until the liberation of our land from the Zionist occupation."

Israeli Information Minister Aharon Yariv said the early morning attack proved that talk by Palestine Liberation Organization chieftan Yasser Arafat before the U.N. General Assembly last week was "nothing but a blood dagger pointed at the heart of Israel."

In Beirut, Abu Iyad, number two man to Arafat in the leadership of Al Fatah guerrilla movement, admitted Tuesday that his men had planned to assassinate King Hussein of Jordan during the recent Arab summit conference in Rabat, Morocco.

Reports in Rabat said Moroccan officials had frustrated a plot to kill Hussein with the arrests of at least 14 members of Al Fatah, the powerful guerrilla organization headed by Arafat, who also is chairman of the PLO.

Iyad said two attempts were made and vowed Palestinian guerrillas would make further attempts on the life of the Jordanian monarch. He said the Fatah movement is committed to killing Hussein and overthrowing the Jordanian regime.

A RESIDENT of the frontier town of Beit Shean drags body of Arab guerrilla to area where angry Isrealis burned the terrorists. Five Israelis and three guerrillas were killed. Twenty-two persons were injured.

Chrysler to shut all but one plant

From United Press International

Chrysler Corp. Tuesday announced plans to shut all but one of its six U.S. auto assembly plants from the day before Thanksgiving to Jan. 6, slashing an additional 43,900 workers from its payrolls.

The drastic cutback to trim 50,000 cars from its production schedules will bring the No. 3 automaker's number of workers idled temporarily or indefinitely to 70,500 hourly workers in December. The company employs 110,000 hourly workers.

Among plants to be closed is the Belvidere, Ill., facility which normally employs 5,500 workers. A spokesman of the United Auto Workers Union in Chicago said 600 of the employes would be on indefinite layoff and would not resume work on Jan. 6.

In the wake of the Belvidere closure plans, UAW Region 4 Director Robert Johnston called on Illinois Senate leaders from both parties "to increase unemployment compensation weekly payments by 30 per cent in the present session of the legislature." A measure calling for a smaller increase already has passed in the Illinois House.

Other Chrysler plants to be closed are in Newark, Del., and the Hamtramck, Jefferson Avenue and Lynch Road plants in the Detroit area.

The only assembly plant that will operate normally is the St. Louis facility which builds Fury, Coronet, Valiant and Dart models. However, on Jan. 2, it will switch from a two-shift operation to one shift.

With just one plant operating in the United States, Chrysler will build about 15,000 cars during December. the company said the 50,000-car cut was necessary because of a record 120-day supply of unsold cars — enough to last more than four months at current selling rates.

Chrysler said its five truck assembly plants as well as the Windsor, Ont., car assembly plant that builds the new personal luxury models Chrysler Cordoba and Charger Special Edition, will operate normally through the end of the year.

The new layoffs, with still more expected from General Motors and Ford, mean nearly 150,000 U.S. auto workers — almost one-fourth of the industry's total labor force — will be idle in the month before Christmas because of record inventories of unsold cars.

In other economic developments Tuesday:

Possible snags that could extend the nationwide coal strike into December were reported as the United Mine Workers bargaining council prepared to resume deliberations on the new contract Wednesday morning. Without giving any particulars, union sources said they expected the council to recommend sending some provisions of the contract back to negotiators for revision before the pact is submitted to the UMW membership for ratification.

• Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield predicted an "economic disaster" rivaling the Great Depression unless the federal government forges a new era of cooperation.

• The Agriculture Department's Sugar Division said retail sugar prices will begin dropping next year and may eventually fall to 20 cents a pound as a result of decreased domestic demand and increased production in 1975.

House Ways and Means votes tax break

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Ways and Means Committee voted Tuesday to end the oil depletion allowance on Jan. 1 and to give a small tax break to most low and moderate income Americans by increasing the standard deduction.

Completing a scaled-down tax bill after more than nine months of work, the committee cracked down harder than expected on oil profits in actions that will cost oil companies an estimated $3.2 billion in 1975.

The increase in both the minimum and maximum standard deduction will mean average yearly tax breaks of $53 to $55 for taxpayers earning less than $15,000 per year, with slightly larger breaks coming at the lower end of the scale. A smaller number earning more than $15,000 per year who use the standard deduction also would benefit.

Committee Chairman Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., said he hoped to get the bill to the House floor on Dec. 4 or 5. It would then go to the Senate where a fillibuster is a good possibility unless the oil tax provisions are changed.

Here are two major provisions.

Oil taxes — the 22 per cent oil depletion allowance would be lowered to 15 per cent retroactive to last Jan. 1, and would be ended entirely Jan. 1, 1975.

Personal income taxes — the standard deduction which can be taken in lieu of itemizing, would be increased from 15 per cent to 16 per cent of income beginning with the tax year 1975. The minimum deduction would go from $1,300 to $1,600 for single taxpayers and $1,900 for joint returns. The maximum deduction would increase from $2,000 to $2,300.

Ford: U.S. and Japan partners in peace, trade

TOKYO (UPI) — President Ford pledged last night that the United States would not only remain "a trustworthy ally" of Japan but also a reliable trading partner.

Ford said in a prepared speech for a luncheon of the Japan Press Club that "just as we work together to maintain today's peace, we can work together to solve tomorrow's problems."

The President, in his last full day in Tokyo before departing for a trip to the old capital of Kyoto, spoke at the Imperial Hotel in the heart of Tokyo. He likened his speech to an American State of the Union address.

Ford told the gathering that American Congressional leaders of both parties "have asked me to tell you of the high value that all Americans attach to our partnership with Japan."

"We intend not only to remain a trustworthy ally," he said, "but a reliable trading partner. We will continue to be suppliers of the goods you need. If shortages occur, we will take special account of the needs of our trading partners."

Ford addressed the Japanese press corps after holding his second meeting in as many days with Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka at the Geihinkan, Japan's official guest house and Ford's residence during his stay here.

Ford's schedule included attendance Wednesday afternoon at a performance by judo and kendo stars at the Sports Palace in Tokyo, and an evening banquet honoring Emperor Hirohito.

The 73-year-old Hirohito, in an unprecedented statement Monday night, called World War II "regrettable" and thanked the United States for its postwar help in rebuilding Japan. The remark was made at a banquet honoring Ford at the Imperial Palace.

In his press club speech on Wednesday, Ford declared Americans were proud of the way they worked with the Japanese during the postwar period.

"We have had some disagreements," he said, "but we have remained friends and partners."

"Americans and Japanese know the value of peace," Ford said. "We want to devote our resources and ourselves to rebuilding things, not tearing them down. We do not want to send our sons into battle again."

Bush given 1-year jail term

From Herald news services

Earl Bush, former press secretary to Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, Tuesday was sentenced to one year in prison for his conviction of fraud stemming from his hidden financial interest in an advertising agency that did business with the city.

U.S. District Court Judge Phillip W. Tone sentenced Bush, 59, to one year for each of 11 counts in the indictment against him. The term is to run concurrently.

Judge Tone imposed no fine or court fine against Bush, saying he had "already been put to extraordinary expense and personal anxiety."

Bush was convicted Oct. 11 after a second trial of a scheme to defraud the city by concealing his interest in the Dell Airport Advertising Agency, a firm doing business with the city. He is the second Daley associate in as many days to be sent to prison. On Monday, former Ald. Thomas E. Keane was sentenced to five years in prison and fined $27,000 and court costs on federal convictions of mail fraud and conspiracy.

Joseph P. Scimone, 60, former superintendent of streets and alleys in suburban Elmwood Park, was sentenced to three years in prison Tuesday on charges of extortion, obstruction of justice and mail fraud. He pleaded guilty Oct. 1 to the charges of extorting $20,000 from the owner of a tree trimming service in exchange for receiving village contracts.

Scimone also was accused of threatening the tree firm owner shortly before he was to testify before a federal grand jury and of evading $1,800 in taxes in 1972.

Judge delays release of wheel-tax funds to county

Cook County won't be able to spend the $1.7 million in wheel tax funds it has in the bank for at least another 30 days.

A Circuit Court judge delayed releasing the funds to the county Tuesday to allow unincorporated area homeowners to file a new lawsuit against the vehicle sticker tax.

Judge Thomas C. Donovan refused to allow attorneys for the Prospect Heights Home Improvement Assn. and for association president Jack Gilligan to amend a 1972 lawsuit that challenged the wheel tax.

But Donovan continued an injunction that bars release of the funds to the county.

THE U. S. SUPREME Court has upheld an Illinois Supreme Court ruling of the legality of the county's ordinance. The wheel tax law requires vehicle owners who live outside municipal boundaries in Cook County to buy the county vehicle stickers.

The new lawsuit will seek to have $1.7 million refunded to vehicle owners who bought county stickers in 1972, 1973 and 1974 while court tests of the ordinance were under way.

The county's failure to collect the tax from all unincorporated area vehicle owners discriminated against persons who paid the tax, attorneys for the PHIA said last week in their attempt to amend the 1972 lawsuit.

In the new suit the organization "is saying the ordinance may be constitutional, but the collection was not," PHIA Atty. Donald Kreger said.

IN RULING THAT the unincorporated homeowners must file a new lawsuit instead of amending the 1972 challenge to the ordinance, Donovan said he didn't know of any authority to change a case which has been decided by the Illinois Supreme Court.

"But I will withhold disbursing the funds" for the filing of a new suit, Donovan said. The judge heads the Circuit Court's Tax Division.

Asked if the homeowners will go ahead and file the suit now that the injunction has been continued, Kreger said, "Oh, you bet."

Kreger and attorney Don Karlton told Donovan that "new facts which we weren't aware of" showed that nonenforcement of the tax ordinance in 1972 and 1973 by the county was "unconstitutional." "The sheriff and the county as a matter of policy refused to enforce the ordinance," but accepted vehicle sticker funds from "volunteer" car owners, the attorney said.

IN RESPONSE TO A question from Assistant State's Atty. Henry Hauser, Kreger said the residents had not challenged enforcement of the ordinance in 1972 because it was only after the tax was ruled unconstitutional that Sheriff Richard Elrod issued a "policy statement" barring enforcement.

The money has been earmarked by County Board Pres. George Dunne to help pay for the new Sheriff's Police headquarters under construction in Maywood. But if the new lawsuit filed by the unincorporated area vehicle owners is successful the county will have to turn to other sources for financing the building.

The suit apparently would have no effect on county enforcement of the wheel tax ordinance in 1975.

By resident of Mill Creek complex

Complaints filed against Ismil Co.

by JOHN MAES

A Buffalo Grove resident has filed complaints with the Illinois Commission on Human Relations and the Federal Dept. of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) against Ismil Management Co., a subsidiary of Miller Builders.

The resident, Dr. Finian J. Murphy, 845 W. Miller, said Tuesday he filed the grievance against the company, which he accused of "injustices" and having "no concern for the individual citizen and his rights," in a letter to the Buffalo Grove Village Board.

Murphy, an Arlington Heights school psychologist also stated in the letter he would be willing to detail his complaints to village trustees.

Murphy is a resident of the Mill Creek apartments, a Miller development.

IN HIS CHARGES against the Ismil firm, managers of the complex, Murphy said he found carpeting in the bedroom of his apartment "infested" with small pieces of broken glass. He said he was unable to get results on the matter until about 3½ weeks after he moved in last August.

The glass could not be removed from the carpet and it was finally replaced, he said. "We put throw rugs over the carpet and the carpet people told us they couldn't get it out." He also said, "We wouldn't dare walk on it with our bare feet."

Murphy said he was told the glass on the floor came from a window that was shattered by the heat of a fire in an upstairs apartment.

Murphy said he also had made arrangements to sublet the apartment through an acquaintance to an out-of-town business executive, but said the managers would not agree unless they were able to "see him first." He said the management firm wanted six months rent in advance.

DORIS THOMPSON, an Ismil manager, denied however the company was not responsive to Murphy's complaints. "It's been taken care of a long time ago," she said. "He (Murphy) moved in and the problem was solved very shortly afterward."

She also responded to Murphy's statement that the firm intended to be discriminatory saying, "that's not true at all. We have several black families in Mill Creek." Murphy said the reason Ismil wanted to see his sub-letter was to chelk his race.

She mentioned that Bill Madlock, a Chicago Cubs baseball player lives in the complex. "I can't see how we would be discriminatory," said Mrs. Thompson.

Connie Seals, executive director of the Illinois Commission on Human Relations said Tuesday she had no knowledge of Murphy's grievance, but said commission personnel check out such complaints by contacting both parties involved to determine if any laws have been violated.

SHE SAID THE commission has no law enforcement authority but would report possible infractions to "other agencies that have enforcement power."

A HUD spokesman said his agency only investigates such complaints for developments that are insured or rent-subsidized by HUD.

United Motor Coach gets RTA grant

United Motor Coach Co. of Des Plaines was given a $336,000 grant Tuesday by the Regional Transportation Authority to keep the ailing bus firm in operation until the end of the year.

The RTA board approved a $336,218 grant for United Motor Coach and a similar emergency grant totaling $449,136 for South Suburban Safeway Lines, another financially-troubled bus company.

The grant is intended to sustain United Motor Coach until Dec. 31, when the firm is expected to be purchased by the North Suburban Mass Transit District (NORTRAN). United will use the funds to meet payrolls, repay operating loans and pay insurance premiums.

John Hanck, United Motor Coach president, said the company would have been unable to meet its payroll this week without the grant. He said the money will be adequate to keep the bus line operating until the end of the year.

WILLIAM OLSEN, president of the Harvey-based South Suburban Safeway Lines, said the firm would have had to raise fares or cut back service without the RTA grant.

The grants were approved in a 6-2 vote by the RTA board, with two Chicago members, Ernest Marsh and James Kemp, opposing the measure. They said the RTA board should arrange for insurance for board members before handing out any grants to protect the members individually from liability in any lawsuits.

United Motor Coach will be required to post $25,000 in escrow at the time of its sale to NORTRAN to guarantee that bus service will be continued after the sale is completed.

THE GRANTS TO the two firms will not be final until contracts with the companies are approved by the RTA board. A meeting was scheduled for Friday to sign the necessary papers.

The RTA board will meet Nov. 27 to consider further mass transit aid grants in the six-county Northeastern Illinois area. The grants approved Tuesday are a small part of the more than $42 million now available to the RTA from state motor fuel tax revenues.

United Motor Coach and the South Suburban firm haul an average of 30,000 passengers per day in the North, Northwestern and South suburbs.

Village board wrapup

Still no contract for garage land

Buffalo Grove Village Atty. Richard Raysa said he has still not received a signed contract clearing the way for the purchase of a 4.3-acre site for a public works garage.

The board is waiting for contractual difficulties to be ironed out before authorizing. Arlington Heights architect Raymond Knoeppel to proceed with working drawings for the $529,000 facility.

Raysa told the board some question was raised over the "language" in the pact.

The village is to obtain the land, on the southwest corner of Raupp Boulevard and Lake-Cook Road, as part of a deal, allowing multi-family zoning for the Phoenix Corp., developers around the Buffalo Grove Golf course.

New insurance policy adopted

The board decided to adopt a new risk-management insurance system designed to save the village some $1,900 in yearly insurance premiums. The new policy calls for raising deductibles on certain areas of village insurance coverage.

Hearing scheduled on zoning

A public hearing will be scheduled before the village planning commission on proposed changes in village zoning ordinances. Under consideration are amendments to the ordinance giving the zoning board of appeals more authority to regulate variations to the code.

Developer granted extension

Developer Richard J. Brown was granted a six-month extension for a height variation allowing for construction of a sixth condominium unit building in the Cambridge-on-the-Lake development.

The structure is the final one in the project and was unable to be built in the time alloted by village zoning ordinances due to economic conditions, company representatives told the board.

Gambling ordinance repealed

Village officials have repealed its nine-year-old gambling ordinance in favor of a new code that will regulate the number of game machines in village business establishments.

Officials were waiting to abolish the old code until the newly-adopted one took effect and have said the ordinance will allow state codes to govern gambling in the village.

Bridge removal bid accepted

The board also voted to accept a bid from Schaefges Bros., contractors, of Wheeling for $1,850 for removal of a bridge on the Arlington Country Club and agreed to pay $900 toward dirt removal along Buffalo Grove Road.

Both jobs are part of a retention-pond project designed to combat flooding in Buffalo Grove.

Special traffic lights OKd

Village trustees also approved an agreement for the installation of special traffic signals at the Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights intersections of Dundee Road. The signals, called Opticom controls, are designed to preempt normal traffic signals for emergency vehicles.

School caucus forms panel to investigate test scores

A committee to investigate standardized test scores in Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 was established by the district's general caucus Monday night.

Last year standardized test scores became an election issue and were discussed by the school caucus during interviews with school board candidates.

Questions were raised about the test scores by parents at last week's school board meeting. Parents asked why the district had average scores in a community with above-average educational background, income and educational resources.

Caucus members expressed concerns about the test scores and approved the formation of the study committee.

The committee plans to meet with Richard Wynn, Dist. 21 special education director, to learn about the Iowa Basic Standardized Test; what a board member's responsibilities are in response to the test scores, and how the district uses the test results.

No directions were given to the committee by the caucus other than to investigate the test scores. It has not been established as an election issue at this time.

The caucus also selected the screening committee that will decide issues to be discussed with candidates. The steering committee includes Sheila Griffie, Fred Marcus, Gary Burke, James Gardner and Bob Terreberry. Alternates to the committee are Ruth Wieder, Sandy Gebel and Carol Duke.

Financial outlook not so bleak in, largely on the new Plaza Verde Shopping Center on Dundee Road.

FINANCE DIRECTOR Richard Glueckert said a village financial report for October showed a $15,000 balance in such fees for the month even though the village is still behind for the year.

Delays and stoppages in construction caused by the cement truckdrivers' strike also hurt the village money-wise because building revenues were not coming in as expected.

Larson said current village funds, plus an estimated $90,000 expected from annual vehicle sticker sales, will give Buffalo Grove enough money to last through the current fiscal year.

He said officials will continue to watch spending, but said the financial picture may improve to the point where the village may be able to undertake some previously deferred programs. These include the proposed parkway tree planting and purchases of public works equipment.

Result of price-fixing suit

Schools to share in gypsum refund

High School Dist. 214 and Arlington Heights Dist. 25 will share in a $350,000 refund to various Illinois school districts and local governments as the result of the settlement of a price-fixing suit against manufacturers of gypsum wallboard and related products.

Dist. 214 will receive $1,027 and Dist. 25 will receive $1,045 from the first $145,000 payment of the settlement.

The suit was filed by the Illinois Attorney General's office on behalf of the State of Illinois and other taxing bodies. The six companies that agreed to the settlement are United States Gypsum Co., Chicago; National Gypsum Co.; Kaiser Gypsum Co., Inc.; Flintkote; Celetex Inc.; and Georgia Pacific Co.

Illinois was the first state to file an anti-trust action against the six companies.

Ill. Atty. Gen. William Scott filed the suit in 1968 in federal district court in California and charged the companies with price fixing on gypsum wall board, plaster and lath during 1966 and 1967.

An Illinois special assistant attorney was named by the court to represent 35 other states who had not filed their own suits against the companies. Total payment to the 50 states will be about 10 per cent of the $67.5 million settlement which will also go to contractors, dealers and private builders.

Backs park district

Fence post
letters to the editor

The recent letter from Jim Kelly that appeared in the Fence Post of Oct. 23, regarding our park district planning and use of park land, needs a response to correct his lack of information and inaccurate assumptions.

Mr. Kelly was correct in stating the park district did receive a $100,000 grant from the state's Open Space Land Acquisition program. Mr. Kelly is incorrect in stating these funds are "supposed to be used to improve and provide recreational facilities." These funds will be used in the manner the program title states. It will assist us in the purchase of one 10 acre park site on the west side of town and will enable us to provide added open space in our community. Period.

Mr. Kelly is incorrect in stsating that the four tennis courts now in the final state of construction at Heritage Park "will have cracks in them" because the land did not have time to settle. Anyone familiar with construction of tennis courts could point out to Mr. Kelly the process that we followed.

- The ground was not disturbed, except where the underdraining was installed. The trenches were then correctly backfilled.
- The courts are pitched, in this case to the aforementioned drains, as all outdoor courts have to be to allow rain water to run off and have the courts playable without "birdbaths" or pooling of water on the courts.
- The courts have six inches of compacted crushed stone base to allow for ground movement and prevent cracking of the asphalt surface.

The football fields have been re-located so that play can be from north to south, as is best so that the participants do not play "into" the sun. The football field Mr. Kelly says is "to say the least, a very poor choice of land for football" was moved to that location to improve our football program by taking advantage of the lights from the softball diamond and the flat play surface area. We are able to schedule additional games two evenings each week, besides our weekend games, for both the adult and the youth football programs.

To assume that by extensive planning to take advantage of the facilities and play space available at our 66-acre Heritage Park, we are insuring the "increase of youthful mischief-making and vandalism within the village" is a conclusion beyond my comprehension. We now have 250 youth involved in our Flag or Tackle Wheeling Park Football program, and stress development of the child, sportsmanship and fundamental football. A Wheeling Park Football Advisory Committee, made up of interested adults, has worked long and hard to successfully improve our football program. This input in our program planning by both children and adults is sought by our board and staff.

We welcome you, Mr. Kelly, or any other citizen with questions, to our staff offices, my office as chief administrative officer of the park district, or to our public park board meetings to answer any questions you may have. I would appreciate a chance to give you the correct information, so that any constructive criticism you may have could be dealt with in that manner. Constructively.

Your participation in our Wheeling Park Football Advisory Committee is one avenue for putting your interest in our planning for the football program to constructive use.

Jaffe says 'thanks'

I would like to thank the citizens of the 4th District for their expression of support for me at the polls on Nov. 5. They can be assured that I will return to the General Assembly to continue to work for better, more responsive and responsible government in Illinois for all of us.

I could not adequately praise the countless numbers of volunteers from all over the district who, under the capable direction of my campaign manager, Alan Scheffres, were willing to devote so much of their personal time and energy toward my re-election. It was their extraordinary efforts in my behalf that made it possible to run a successful campaign on a low budget, and it was their faith and confidence in me that reaffirmed my commitment to wage a clean, honorable campaign based only on record and issues.

My very special appreciation must be directed to Calvin Sutker, Democratic committeeman of Niles Township and good friend, who recognized that I could not be re-elected without the unqualified support of his organization. That extra support was forthcoming for me, as it was for Abner Mikva. Neither of us would have been elected without it. Calvin Sutker has earned the respect and gratitude of the Democratic community in Niles Township and its candidates.

Vote 'challenge'

Voting can be a real challenge, if you're a person 4 feet 11 inches or under. The machines are all over 5 feet high just so you can't read the names at the top. The taller person, 6 feet or more, must get on their knees to see the ones on the bottom.

Then instead of having the machines set up to read from left to right the way all of us Americans have been taught to read, they are set up to read up and down the way the Chinese read. But maybe it is because the machines were made in China.

In our last election in our area we had 71 judges to vote for. They squeezed all 71 names, their titles and the words "yes" and "no" as to which way to vote in two columns. These two columns were set up in the same manner reading up and down and were at the other end of the machine. Leaving the whole middle section on these machines empty.

In my opinion they could have spread these names in several columns. This would have made them more legible to read.

Board action on Whipple unfair

State School Supt. Michael Bakalis should reject the State Teacher Certification Board's recommendation that the school psychologist certificate of John Whipple be revoked.

Bakalis should act immediately, thus insuring justice to Whipple and saving him from the necessity of a long and expensive court appeal.

The certification board Saturday recommended that Whipple's certificate be revoked because he acted as the administrator of Dwyer School in Arlington Heights without a n administrative certificate. While recommending that his certificate be revoked on this technicality, however, the board found him innocent on the most important charge against him — the charge that he allowed or participated in child abuse at Dwyer School.

The certification board action unfairly penalizes Whipple for what may well have been administrative bungling by his superiors. It is intolerable that Whipple should pay with his career for misjudgment, oversight or incompetence by others.

The fact is that John Whipple was told to assume control of Dwyer School by his bosses in the Northwest Education Cooperative who did not believe he needed an administrative certification to do the job. Whipple's appointment to the administrative job was not a secret for the four years he worked there — documents to the state and county school superintendent's office listed him as "clinical director" and no questions were raised about his certification.

John Whipple

No questions were raised, in fact, until a group of teachers who were a n g r y about the evaluations Whipple had given them went to Cook County School Supt. Richard Martwick in June. Those teachers told frightening stories of child abuse in the school — stories which the certification board found unconvincing.

By quickly overturning the certification board's ruling, Bakalis can undo this miscarriage of justice. If he delays, Whipple's attorney will file an appeal in court and Bakalis or whoever succeeds him will be unable to act until the court case is finished.

As we call upon Bakalis to act in Whipple's behalf, we must commend the certification board for one part of their decision. The board has called for an investigation of the administrative practices in NEC and of the personnel policies of the NEC board.

We think the case involving Whipple is clear evidence that some administrative tightening up is needed in NEC. Officials in NEC apparently agree, for they have pledged full cooperation with the investigation.

It is also important for the public, which has been reading about the charges and counter-charges in the Dwyer case, to remember that the certification board has ruled that the child abuse charges were not proved.

It is important for the public to remember that because it will be unfair if Dwyer and its staff continue to carry the stigma of these sensational charges.

There were problems at Dwyer School — but the certification board ruling clearly states that child abuse was not one of them.

Richard Nixon's latest crisis: a possible tax suit

by CLARK R. MOLLENHOFF

WASHINGTON — The Internal Revenue Service is considering formal demands on Richard Nixon for more than $350,000 in back taxes and civil fraud penalties for the years 1969 through 1973.

The new demands are a result of new evidence that fraud was involved in the preparation of the former president's federal income tax returns in connection with the backdating of a deed for Nixon's vice-presidential papers which were given to the National Archives. Nixon c l a i m e d tax deductions totaling $576,000 on this gift.

Although the gift was disallowed by the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Service Taxation and the IRS last April, the firm evidence of fraud was not available until a few days ago when Edward L. Morgan entered a plea of guilty to a charge of criminal conspiracy to backdate the deed and to conceal the fraud.

Morgan, a former deputy counsel to President Nixon, entered the plea of guilty and has agreed to testify against his co-conspirators in the more than four-year conspiracy of concealment.

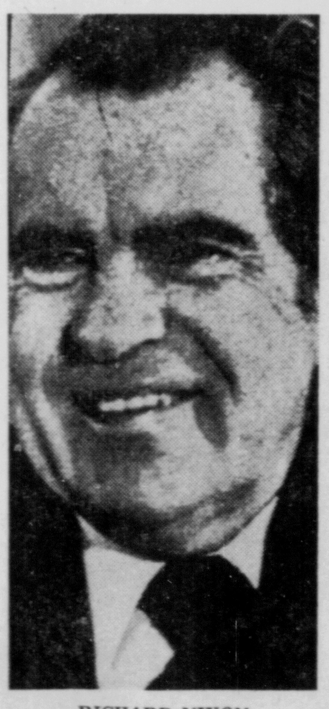
Now that Morgan has admitted the fraud and is ready to implicate unnamed co-conspirators in the fraud, the civil fraud penalties can be assessed by IRS.

The civil fraud penalties can be applied even though there may be no direct evidence that Nixon knew of the frauds which Morgan admits were perpetrated in connection with Nixon's tax returns.

Since the law requires that Nixon sign the returns as the taxpayer, he is responsible for the accuracy on those returns and is likewise responsible for any civil frauds that may have been committed by Morgan or any other agents in the preparation for the return.

According to Treasury Department sources, Nixon has not yet paid a deficiency of about $148,000 for 1969. This deficiency is beyond the three-year statute of limitations which applies unless fraud is involved, and fraud had not been firmly established last April when Nixon started to make his settlement with the IRS on the basis of "negligence" penalties of 5 per cent rather than "civil fraud" penalties of 50 per cent.

In addition to formalizing the demand for the $148,000 for 1969, the IRS is considering imposing 50 per cent fraud penalties on tax deficiencies of about $440,000 for the years 1969 through 1972. These penalt i e s would total approximately $220,000.



RICHARD NIXON

These payments are in addition to the amounts Nixon has paid since last April in taxes, interest and negligence penalties for the years 1970, 1971 and 1972.

President Ford's full and unconditional pardon relieves the former president from any criminal liabilities in connection with the filing of fraudulent federal income tax returns during the period he was in office, but it does not relieve him of the responsibility to pay civil fraud penalties.

Once the IRS makes a formal judgment that Nixon has the obligation to pay taxes for 1969 as well as the civil fraud penalties on the basis of admissions of fraud by Morgan, Nixon and his lawyers will be faced with a dilemma.

If he decides to contest the claims of back taxes and civil fraud penalties, he must make affidavits or give depositions, or otherwise testify under oath that he had no knowledge of the frauds committed by Morgan and other co-conspirators.

If he testifies inaccurately under oath, the former president will be risking prosecution for perjury or giving false information to IRS agents, which would not be covered by the pardon covering only the period up to Aug. 9, 1974.

If he chooses not to take that risk, Nixon will undoubtedly have to sell his Key Biscayne home or his San Clemente home. At the time he paid his tax bill last June, a White House spokesman said that it almost wiped out Nixon's personal savings and indicated that it had required that the former president obtain a loan.

The plea of guilty by Morgan, the 36-year-old former White House lawyer, has created a whole new crisis for the crisis-prone former president and for many of those who were involved in the pattern of false statements and misrepresentations that constituted the Nixon White House defense against federal tax fraud.

Morgan, according to the information filed in district court, says his unnamed fellow conspirators "well knew" the Nixon vice-presidential papers were not given to the archives until April, 1970, and engaged in a backdating of the deed to make it appear that the gift had taken place in April, 1969 — prior to the July, 1969, deadline permitting such deductions.

Others identified in Senate and House hearings and reports as having taken an active part in the questionable transactions around the now admittedly fraudulent deed were Frank De Marco Jr., a California lawyer who prepared the deed for Morgan's signature, and appraiser Ralph Newman, who had made statem e n t s to various congressional sources and the FBI placing his appraisal of the Nixon papers in April, 1969, rather than in October and November, 1969.

Special prosecutor Henry S. Ruth Jr. has not indicated whether he intends to use Morgan's testimony in connection with prosecution of others for criminal fraud or whether he will use it only in connection with the civil tax frauds involving Nixon's taxes.

In either case, it creates a new crisis for Nixon that could extend far beyond United States District Judge John Sirica's court.

Drama coverage applauded

Dear Dorothy Oliver:

I feel that it is necessary to write you a brief note to thank you for the very excellent coverage of our first production, A Man for All Seasons. The stories were good, the picture was excellent and the general publicity is the best we have ever had (this is the first time we have appeared in the Arlington Herald).

Most important of all, the students are thrilled! This is certainly a great help to our theatre program and to what we are trying to accomplish.

Again — on behalf of the cast, crews, and directors of A Man for All Seasons— thank you very much.

Vote canvass (finally) declares victors

Dems led ticket in 3 Northwest suburb districts

Democratic candidates for the Illinois House of Representatives led the ticket in three of five traditionally Republican legislative districts in the Northwest suburbs and claimed two of the three legislative seats in one of them.

State Rep. Richard A. Mugalian, D-Palatine, narrowly outdistanced the two Republican winners to obtain his second term in the 2nd Legislative District.

In the 5th District, incumbent state Rep. Jack Williams, D-Franklin Park, topped the ticket, followed closely by newcomer Ted Leverenz of River Grove, as they unseated State Rep. Richard A. Walsh, R-Oak Park.

In the 4th Legislative District, State Rep. Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie, outdistanced State Rep. Robert Juckett, R-Park Ridge, by 2,070 votes, and State Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, by 2,957. The second Democratic candidate, Thomas W. Flynn of Des Plaines, ran nearly 11,000 votes behind Jaffe.

In the 1st and 3rd districts, where all incumbents were reelected, Republicans held their traditional top positions.

THE CLOSEST legislative race in the Northwest suburbs, complicated by the late entry of an independent candidate, was in the 2nd District.

The 448 votes given to independent Roger Kotecki would have been enough to give the second Democratic candidate, Bernard Carey of Elgin, a victory over State Rep. John Friedland, R-South Elgin.

Aaron Jaffe

Richard Mugalian

Jack Williams

Ted Leverenz

Carey got 11,221 votes to 11,539 for Friedland. Mugalian outdistanced the top Republican, State Rep. Leo LaFleur of Bloomingdale, by a mere 14 votes, 11,963 to 11,949.

In the 1st District, State Rep. Brian Duff, R-Wilmette, the highest vote-getter in the state in the 1972 legislative races, piled up 55,329 votes; followed by State Rep. John Porter, R-Evanston, with 51,902; and State Rep. Harold A. Katz, D-Glencoe, with 46,059.

State Rep. Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, again led the 3rd District in her second election, with 37,618 votes; followed by State Rep. Donald Totten, R-Hoffman Estates, with 32,675; and State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, with 29,833.

Young to file discovery recount bid

Petition for a discovery recount in the Congressional election between U.S. Rep.-elect Abner Mikva and U.S. Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-10th, will be filed today in the wake of the official vote canvass which showed Mikva winning by 3,460 votes.

A spokesman for Young's office said his figures, taken from the same tally sheets used in the canvass, showed the spread to be only 2,835 votes.

William Swindell, Young's spokesman, said the Congressman's staff was rechecking its figures, but that a petition will be filed with County Clerk Stanley T. Kusper Jr. today, asking a "discovery recount."

THE CANVASS SHOWED Mikva with 84,057 votes to Young's 80,597, a margin of barely over 51 per cent for Mikva in their rematch.

In 1972, Young gathered 120,681 votes, or 52 per cent, to Mikva's 113,222.

The reduced totals reflected what was believed to be the lowest percentage voter turnout in Cook County history. Only 1,438,906 voters — 55.4 per cent — turned out throughout the county, compared to 74.2 per cent in the last off-year election in 1970.

In a discovery recount, voting machines and vote totals are checked in 25 per cent of the precincts in the district. Swindell said if the discovery showed proportionate vote discrepancies in Young's favor, a court order will be sought for a complete recount.

IN THE 12TH Congressional District, U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane claimed a victory margin of 62.8 per cent, according to the canvass.

Crane had a total of 70,731, to 45,049 for Democrat Betty Spence. He received 52,601 votes in Cook County, to Mrs. Spence's 31,071. In the Lake County portion of the district, Crane had a margin of 18,130 to 13,978.

In 1972, Crane received 74.2 per cent of the vote.

All but 1 of 21 county judicial posts to Dems

Democrats swept all but one of 21 Cook County judicial posts, a record preserved by the razor-thin 347-vote victory margin of Robert C. Buckley of Arlington Heights.

The only Republican winner was County Comr. Charles Grupp, probably the most familiar name on the judicial ballot. He outdistanced Democrat Earl Arkiss 256,987 votes to 245,508 for a seat on the Circuit Court.

For the first time in Cook County since "judicial retention" was instituted in 1964, one Circuit Court judge failed to retain his seat, falling 15,000 votes short of the necessary 60 per cent. Judge David Lefkovits received 351,607 votes for retention and 236,310 against, a total of 59.8 "yes" votes.

Two other first-time Republican candidates from the Northwest suburbs, Bernard Lee of Mount Prospect and William R. Jacobs of Des Plaines, also lost to Democrats in countywide races for Circuit Court judge.

Grupp and John A. Nordberg, the Republican defeated by Buckley, were in the only two contests limited to suburban Cook County.

The official vote canvass showed Buckley with 253,899 votes to 253,552 for Nordberg, a resident of Golf.

Bad tax-law enforcement draining state: report

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Illinois is losing money through poor enforcement of its income tax laws, according to a report by the state auditor general.

The losses are being caused partly by a condition of near "internecine warfare" within the Illinois Dept. of Revenue, the report says.

The report, signed by Auditor General Robert G. Cronson, is highly critical of the department's administration of the income tax law, implying strongly that the state is losing money which it should be collecting.

Revenue Director Robert Allphin said the report was prepared at his request and that his department already is moving to correct the problems it outlines.

ALPHIN SAID he generally recognized the department's deficiencies when he took office in mid-1973 but was restrained by budget considerations from improving all areas simultaneously.

Cronson's report singled out three major problems of administration of the income tax law.

The first, he said, is that the department devotes far more of its effort to inforcement of the sales tax laws than to the income tax, despite the fact the income tax produces more revenue.

Quoting from an independent audit performed by the firm of Ernst and Ernst, Cronson said, "There has been an apparent lack of comprehensive planning and training to gain the necessary expertise regarding the laws, systems, legal decisions, reporting requirements, audit procedures, etc., relating to the state income tax.

"This is a deficiency of the utmost seriousness," Cronson said. "It should be corrected at once."

THE SECOND PROBLEM, he said, is that while the "tax processing group" and the "enforcement group" within the department "may not actually be engaged in internecine warfare . . . their relationship, at best, falls far short of a harmonious and cooperative working relationship."

Quoting from the audit, Cronson said, "Each group continually refers to the other as 'they' as opposed to 'we' as if to denote that the groups really aren't integrated and working in the same department with the same over-all objectives."

"It is essential," Cronson said, "That these two groups be brought together and made to operate efficiently as a team if state revenue collections are to be maximized."

The third "basic and serious deficiency," Cronson said, may be the cause of the other two.

"It would appear from the report that top management of the department has not yet taken effective steps to define enforcement priorities or to coordinate activities of the two groups," Cronson said.

'Still-building' school districts most hurt

Inflation muscling into classrooms?

attempt to "stay even" with rising costs.

Dan Suffoleto, Arlington Heights Dist. 25 business manager, hopes to save 15 to 20 per cent by buying 1975-76 school year supplies now, instead of waiting for May, the traditional time.

"We're getting off that cycle," said Suffoleto. "We hope to get in when the manufacturers are down in business and that will mean a better price," he said.

Suffoleto said that such practices do not mean drastic amounts of savings, since the supply budget makes up only a small part of the district's total budget. "But if I can save $5,000, that's $5,000 we didn't have before."

WHILE SCHOOL districts have been able to trim costs in some areas, major parts of the budget are going up, and nothing can be done about it.

Teacher salaries make up a huge portion of district budgets and average increases in teacher pay has gone up about 12 per cent in the area this year.

Textbooks are another expense that keep going up.

Inflation has turned the role of the business manager into a position resembling a riverboat gambler, several of them say. They buy huge quantities of one item to get a good price, while supplies of other items are allowed to run dangerously low until a good price can be found. And the "gamblers" do not always gamble correctly.

"The odds are 50-50 you'll make a good decision," Lapicola said.

BUSINESS MANAGERS agree that they are "coping" now, but do not like to think about the future.

"We're coping here, but inflation is at our heels," said Lapicola. "Right now, taxes and state aid are helping us keep up, but if the pace continues at its present 10 to 15 per cent rate it's going to catch us and hurt us."

"Also, we could be reducing local taxes at a much faster rate than we are now if it wasn't for inflation," Lapicola said.

"It's not to critical a point yet, but we have more accounts in the red than usual," said James Hendren, business manager for Prospect Heights Dist. 23.

BY "DEALING WITH it," school districts have apparently kept the crunch of inflation out of the classroom, although no one knows for how long it can go on. If cuts come, they will come in non-instructional areas first meaning less equipment and less supplies.

"The kids probably don't feel it, but the teachers do," said Suffoleto. "Home economics teachers feel it through the price of food, industrial arts teachers feel it through the price of lumber and so on."

For all the obvious disadvantages inflation has had on school districts, it's also helped in some instances.

"The crunch has made us more aware of how to use things better," said Lapicola. "It's making us wiser."

"We're buying less, but more prudently," said Robert Weber, assistant superintendent for business services at High School Dist. 214.

MEANWHILE, THE districts plan to continue their efforts and hope things eventually will return to a lower inflation rate and to a market where deliveries can be expected and on time.

Lapicola said he also looks forward to the day when he can tell a salesman who tells him to "take it or leave it," just where he can leave it.

"Now you just have to smile and say 'that's wonderful.' "

The world's heaviest man, Robert Hughes of Monticello, Ill., at one time weighed 1,069 lbs. His chest measured 124 in., his waist 122 in. and his upper arm 40 in. Jack's couldn't fit him.

"Major Mite", a famous American dwarf, was only 27 in. tall at the age of 36. Jack's couldn't fit him either.

Goliath, the world's most famous giant, stood 6 ft. 4 in. tall. Jack's could fit him. But we can't fit Don Koehler of Chicago, who measures 8 ft. 2 in.

Japanese study

Weather shifts, low grain reserves could cause famine

LONDON — With the world's food grain reserves virtually at zero, United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization officials are nervously pondering the implications of a little-publicized long-term weather study recently completed by Japan's Meteorological Agency.

The report warns that a pattern of major deviations from weather norms around the world that began in the early 1960s and has caused increasing disruption of food production shows no sign of abating for the rest of this decade. Thus a combination of bad 1975 harvests and empty storage silos could cause mass starvation.

The Japanese study says the trend began in 1963 when Europe and the northeastern United States were hit by a very cold winter, while the Kamchatka Peninsula basked in temperatures 22 degrees F. higher than usual. That summer Paris shivered in its lowest temperatures for 90 years. There followed:

- 1964: Drought in eastern North America, floods in Italy.
- 1965: Severe drought in India, disastrous rains and floods.
- 1966: Record-breaking cold wave over Europe from Moscow to Madrid; snow in Moscow in August for the first time in 60 years; severe drought in Indonesia.
- 1967: Devastating floods in Rio de Janeiro in February and March; heavy rains and floods in Alaska in August.

- 1968: Droughts in Brazil and Korea.
- 1969: Heavy rains and floods in California in January; drought in Brazil in March; major autumn floods in Tunisia.
- 1970: Unprecedented floods in Romania and the Ukraine in May; rainfall of 10.9 inches in one day in Arizona in September, heaviest ever.
- 1971: Floods in southeast Australia in January; coldest weather in a century hits Europe in March; drought in Kenya in November.
- 1972: Drought in the Soviet Union, India, China, Southeast Asia and Australia; unusual changes in sea currents off Peru and Portugal.
- 1973: Japan has second abnormally warm winter; snow thaws in Russia at New Year and strips winter wheat of snow cover, ruining later harvest; famines in West Africa and India.
- 1974: Floods in Bangladesh for second straight year; disastrous heat wave strikes United States corn and other grain crops; North Atlantic water 3 degrees colder than normal; spring drought in Britain.

The Japanese survey says the warming trend in the northern part of the Northern Hemisphere began to reverse in the 1940s, and statistical data show no halt in the trend to a colder air mass in the Arctic.

Whatever the explanation, if extreme weather disrupts next year's global harvests, the current lack of international cooperation and coordination means many food-importing countries will be in a desperate situation.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Bidding can become contagious

The American Contract Bridge League's Charity Foundation runs two continent-wide charity games each year. The same hands are played simultaneously by tens-of-thousands of bridge players in hundreds of places in North America. Anyone can play and do his part to make the game a success.

The Foundation expects to contribute at least $100,000 to the American Cancer Society, the designated charity for 1974.

Today's hand was played in the spring game. At most tables North and South would play the hand at a part score spade contract. If the defense cashed in their three tricks as a starter they would get a very good score since once declarer gains the lead he will rattle off 11 tricks.

A few North-South pairs reached game — usually on the bidding shown in the box.

East could blame himself for the bad score. No one twisted his arm to get that three diamond bid out of him. Had he just passed, there is little chance that South would have found a three-spade bid. He really only bid it because everyone was bidding and it was his turn. Even then, we doubt if those North players who continued to four spades did so with much enthusiasm. They also were just bidding along.

'State money used for campus probe'

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — One of two state lawmakers accused of pocketing nearly $8,000 in state funds in an expense-account kickback scheme said he hired a young black man to probe campus turmoil.

State Rep. Webber Borchers, R-Decatur, said he used his share of the money — at least $1,200, according to the federal indictment — to pay the man to look into "anti-radical activity" at a half-dozen state universities in the early 1970's.

The 18-count indictment against Borchers and former Rep. Christian H. Homeier III of Springfield, also a Republican, charges they paid legislative expense money to two of Homeier's travel agency workers who then handed the money back to them.

BORCHERS, CONSIDERED an eccentric by his colleagues, said he thinks what he did was right and said he would do it again.

"This young black man came to me in 1969 and said I was the only legislator speaking out against all this hell-raising on campus. He said he wanted to work for me, tell me what's going on," Borchers said.

"So I took him up on it. I looked at my expenses and decided I had $1,500 for anti-radical activity, which I paid him through Homeier's secretary," Borchers said.

Borchers said he used Homeier's secretary because his own had just quit. He also said he sees nothing wrong with using office expense money to combat campus radicals. "I'd do it all over again," he said.

BORCHERS SAID Internal Revenue Service agents began poring over his financial records in April. He has tried ever since to contact the man to vouch for him, but so far has failed.

"I'm not surprised I can't locate him," Borchers said. "Soon after I met him I suspected he wasn't using his real name because he wouldn't give me his Social Security number."

Because his informant wouldn't produce a Social Security number, said Borchers, he funneled the payment through the Homeier secretary "so federal income tax would be paid." Of the $1,650 he got, Borchers gave the informant $1,100 and the secretary $550 to pay federal taxes.

State public aid unit sees welfare topping $1.5 million

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — The Illinois Dept. of Public Aid will need at least $133.3 million more this fiscal year than it earlier estimated, director James Trainor says.

That extra money would push the total of state welfare grants for fiscal 1975 to more than $1.5 billion — a record.

Trainor, in a statement to the Legislative Advisory Committee on Public Assistance, asked the legislature approve an additional $3.3 million for his department during the fall session.

The $3.3 million, Trainor said, would enable the department to give 5 per cent "cost-of-living" grants to all welfare recipients. The legislature voted last spring to give all welfare recipients a 10 per cent increase in benefits. Gov. Daniel Walker then cut the amount appropriated for grants, saying the state could afford only 5 per cent.

THE WAY THAT appropriations bill was worded, however, the department was unable to grant even 5 per cent hikes to persons covered under programs for the aged, blind and disabled. As a result, those recipients and their grants increased by $1.16 per month rather than $8.04, which a 5 per cent increase would bring.

Trainor said that even with a 5 per cent increase, the department will have to ask the legislature for an additional $130 million next spring to pay its bills for the current fiscal year.

IF THE HOUSE follows the lead taken by the Senate and overrides Walker's veto of the 10 per cent increase, another $34.5 million would be tacked onto the deficiency request, bringing it to at least $164.5 million at current caseload levels.

And even that figure could rise, he said, depending on what happens at the federal level, the amount of unemployment experienced in the state and how fast medical costs climb.

Coin collectors can keep abreast of new issues and values, every Thursday in the HERALD.

"The way we worked to build the Zion Nuclear Power Station saved over $100 million."

"That's one of the ways we're keeping costs just as low as we can."

Dick Cosaro is chief project engineer at our Zion nuclear station.

"When you have a project this big, your budget has to have some give and take. But you do have a set of standards to go by. When we build a power station, we measure the cost of labor in terms of man-hours per kilowatt of capacity. The typical figure for a big nuclear generating station is over 8 man-hours per kilowatt. But the figure at Zion was only 5.2. That comes out to a saving of over 100 million dollars.

"People ask me how we did this.

"Well, for one thing, it wasn't by cutting corners. Part of the answer, of course, came from good engineering and smart planning, from using standardized procedures and pre-built modules when we could.

"But there were no technological breakthroughs, there were no miracles. The real secret was just plain hard work. Just a lot of people doing the best they can to get the job done.

"For example, the project's engineers put in a lot of extra hours in order to stay ahead of our construction crews. Now, nobody likes to put in long hours that could be spent at home with their families—but when the alternative is a construction delay that can cost you as much as $100,000 per day, you do what you have to.

"We must have done it right, because we saved over 7 million man-hours on this job, based on the average for comparable plants.

"It took over five years and at times as many as 1,850 dedicated construction workers, technicians and supervisors to complete this job. Five years. That's a pretty fair chunk of a man's life.

"But with so many construction jobs coming in at record high prices these days, well, it sure feels good to bring in a big project the way we brought in Zion."

Jokes bad, but Groucho contest tops

by BOB GALLAS

The cigar smoke was thick enough to cut and about as sickening as most of the jokes, but that didn't seem to bother the enthusiastic crowd of nostalgia freaks.

Armed with cigars, guns or an occasional pith helmet and dressed in everything from nightshirts to tuxedos, the group looked ready to go on "Let's Make a Deal."

The assembly started early Saturday at the studios of WFLD-TV (Channel 32) in Chicago for what promised to be one of the biggest events of the year for Groucho Marx followers — a Groucho look-alike contest.

Old and young, male and female, the contestants came from the city, the suburbs and from as far away as Milwaukee, DeKalb and Gary.

While the winner would go away with a color television set and appear on commercials plugging the station's reruns of Groucho's old show, "You Bet Your Life," the atmosphere didn't reflect competition. It seemed more like a carnival, complete with costumes and entertainment.

THE PARTICIPANTS seemed more occupied with enjoying their fellow Marx groupies. For now there was no reproach or sidelooks if one broke into a scene from "Animal Crackers," as countless others were eager to join.

About 80 entrants sat in the studio as competition got under way. Some brought friends or family to serve as either moral support or as straight man. All brought Groucho's trademark cigar that ranged from Tiparillo to Long Green Poles.

The first to do his bit was 8-year-old Tony Wolberg of Glencoe. He was followed in the next four hours by a procession of Grouchos, some very good, many very bad.

The crowd turned as still another Groucho swung into the room, or rather rolled in. This Groucho came equipped with wheels — roller skates, that is.

STEALING THE show was the Silverstein family of DeKalb — 5-year-old Daniel, 9-year-old Rhonda and 12-year-old Steven — who came as Harpo, Chico and Groucho, respectively.

"What's that?" asked the female Chico, refering to a point in a contract. "That's the sanity clause," the youthful Groucho shot back.

"Aw you can't fool me; there ain't no sanity clause," said Chico as the audience laughed heartily at the play on Santa Claus.

Five-year-old Daniel was perfect — he played dead.

One enterprising imitator finished his bit with a little John Wayne. The judges were not impressed.

AFTER THREE HOURS of Groucho, even some of the diehards began to get restless, perhaps bored by the similarity of routines. Occasionally, two, four or all of the audience Grouchos would finish a line for the imitator on stage, good naturedly, of course.

The carnival atmosphere always provided a healthy round of applause, even following the worst imitators that had some of the audience cringing out of sympathy.

The Grouchos kept coming and so did the lines.

Chico: "Did you ever wake up with a pain in the neck?" Groucho: "No, she gets up long before I do."

Groucho: "I shot an elephant in my pajamas. How he got in my pajamas, I don't know."

Richard Blasucci of Wheaton was named the new Groucho. Blasucci had portrayed an older Groucho, doing a self composed script of Groucho as host of "You Bet Your Life," questioning Richard Nixon, played by the Rev. Tony Tchetta.

"Say the secret woid and win $100," piped Groucho. "The secret woid is phlebitis."

'Feeling Good' medical show no bitter pill to take

by FRANK S. SWERTLOW

NEW YORK — With a touch of satire, a pinch of song and a dash of dance, "Feeling Good," a variety magazine about better health care for adults, debuts tonight on the 250 stations of the Public Broadcasting Service.

This medical show isn't a bitter pill to swallow. It won't frighten you or blast you with statistics or pour cheap drama down your throat.

Nevertheless, its pleasant bedside manner brings you the message — you better start taking care of yourself before it's too late.

THE FIRST program in the 26-part series concerns prenatal care, mental health and nutrition. Each subject is treated in a light and entertaining manner. Thus, viewers learn about mental health through a documentary; malnutrition and overeating is discussed in satire, and baby care is suggested in song.

The primary audience is young parents who will exert their influence on their children. The over-all theme is that better health care starts with you, and your conscious decision to do something about it.

This first show is a visual delight, and the writing and directing are fast-paced and solid. "Feeling Good" doesn't preach at you, but it will make you think about yourself, and maybe that's the first step toward better health.

The Children's Television Workshop should be saluted for its production. After this program, CTW might want to call itself the Adult Television Workshop.

THE FORMAT FOR the first show, like the other 25 one-hour shows, involves a variety store in a shopping center known as "Mac's Place." The owner, Mac, is played by Rex Everhart, and the five other regulars are Ethel Shutta, Priscilla Lopez, Ben Slack, Marjorie Barnes and Joe Morton. They resemble Miss, Mr. and Mrs. American, and the theme of health care is subtly woven into their daily lives.

In a separate segment of the show, comedian Bill Cosby will do a monologue each week. Others similarly featured are singers Johnny Cash, B. B. King and Helen Reddy.

During the rest of the series "Feeling Good" will discuss cancer, heart disease, alcoholism and hypertension.

A team with personality enjoys impressive campaign

St. Viator's 'little people' finish at 9-2

by MIKE KLEIN

American Football Society, that populace whose money and worship transforms mortal athletes into weekend demigods, easily appreciates the stoic leadership of coaches who've Done-It-All. And looked the part . . . squared jawed, ready to leap at glory.

So there should be no niche in AFS. for high school coaches who tint their hair blond, have one pierced ear, don various items of jewelry, live in Chicago's New Town area, refuse to scream at officials and never played the game in college.

All of this dictates that Jim Lyne should not exist. He's the logical alternative to most coaches.

Lyne refuses to berate officials because he insists that will only create enemies for his St. Viator football team.

(One in a series of reviews of varsity football seasons at schools in the Herald circulation area.)

Being gracious makes far more sense. And besides, assistant coach Pat Mahoney, the school dean, capably handles that category.

As for the other irregularities . . . a once pierced ear which has since healed, silver bracelets and neck chains plus his what-the-hell attitude . . . that's also Jim Lyne.

Fortunately, he is quite real, a refreshing addition to the coaching fraternity which badly needs more men who realize football is a mere iota smaller than all of life itself.

The days have passed when any coach can tell his athletes they must win to preserve America and conquer communism. Don't laugh. People have tried dumber angles but kids are too smart. That is probably why Lyne succeeds. He

Wright handles Harper in opener

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

Ed Badger, the head basketball coach at Wright College, can play the fox as well as anybody. He came into the opening game against Harper College last night moaning and groaning about all the things going wrong with his team and all the people he didn't have.

Then he unloaded a starting five on the floor where each player was as good a jumper as Harper's best leaper, Tim Holland, and blew a hole in the Hawks 19 points wide to head back downtown undefeated.

Harper made the 79-60 loss a ballgame through the first half. The Hawks led for the last time at 8-6 and fell behind by as many as seven in the first 20 minutes. A basket and four free throws by Chris Mielke in the last two minutes cut Wright's halftime lead to three.

The Rams opened the second half by racing to an 11 point lead of 43-32 and Harper never recovered.

"This is a better Wright ballclub than I anticipated," Harper coach Roger Bechtold said. "We expected them to be quick but they were in better shape than we were.

"They were able to do things that we couldn't stop simply because we were out of shape. I'll take the blame for that."

Wright surprised Harper by abandoning their 1-3-1 zone defense before the game even started and went, instead, with a sticky man to man. The pressure proved to be too much of a problem for Harper's guards.

"Their pressure forced our offense out too far for us to work anything," Bechtold said. "We hadn't faced that before. We've been working against a man to man in practice mostly but you can't prepare for the kind of pressure and quickness Wright showed us if you don't have the same quickness on your team.

"I was disappointed in our lack of poise. We were the veteran ballclub out there tonight. The freshmen have never faced anything like this but the sophomores didn't keep their heads well at all."

Harper's zone, Bechtold noted, "did a good job in the first half. In the second we fell too far behind to stay in it and had to go to the man to man. If we hadn't fallen so far behind early in the second half they couldn't have run up the score on us like they did."

Jimmy House, at 5-5 the smallest player on Wright's team, hammered the zone with his flimsy little jumpshot that kept falling in for 18 points. Dick Powell's 22 points led the Rams.

Holland, playing his first game for the Hawks, ran into some early foul trouble and had to sit out some of the first half. He came alive late in the game but his 16 points didn't totally appease Bechtold.

"Tim made some big mistakes out there tonight," he said. "But he also hustled and rebounded well. He has some things to learn about defense and taking good shots. Late in the game there he was trying to win the game himself and that's just impossible."

Harper travels to Elgin Friday night for a 7:30 game.

Saxons rule Mid-Suburban football

'The whole thing' for Schaumburg!

by ART MUGALIAN

A lot of people figured that Bob Ferguson was branching out into a new profession when he announced at the beginning of the football season that his Schaumburg Saxons wanted "the whole thing" in the Mid-Suburban League.

Folks thought that maybe Bob wasn't happy with his job as head grid coach at Schaumburg. Maybe he wanted to start a new career as a standup comic.

Others noted that Ferguson had tested the laugh meter in 1973 when his Saxons had finished their third varsity season with a 4-4 record. "I want a chanpionship next year," the Schaumburg coach had proclaimed.

But now, with the 1974 season just so much MSL history, those people realize that what Coach Ferguson had to say wasn't so funny after all. The joke was on everybody else.

Ferguson's reputation as a coach received a healthy boost and Schaumburg High School was presented with its first major sports championship as the Saxons stormed to a 6-1 South division record and a victory over Hersey in the league's Super Bowl. Overall, Schaumburg boasted an 8-2 mark.

(One in a series of football reviews at schools in the Herald circulation area.)

"I was a little premature, maybe, when I said we wanted the whole thing," Ferguson admitted. "It was meant to give our kids a little drive and determination.

"But I knew we could do well this season," the Saxon coach went on, "because defense is so important in this game and defense was our forte. We had nine of 11 defensive starters coming back. I figured that if our defense could put it together this year, even if we had a mediocre team offense, we would still have a chance to take it all."

It was the defense that performed so well for Schaumburg all season. It was the defense that almost singlehandedly won the Arlington game, the Rolling Meadows contest, the Hersey game. It was the defense that carried Schaumburg all the way to the state's first high school football playoff, where the Saxons lost, 14-8, to East Leyden in the opening round.

Led by captain and three-year starting tackle Ken Jaffke and two-time all-conference linebacker Tom Martino, the Schaumburg defenders held the opposition to 101 points in 10 games.

"If Schaumburg was noted for anything in 1974, it was our strong defense," Ferguson offered.

But the Saxons were also noted for an offense that was anything but mediocre. Led by junior quarterback Russ Zonca and ably assisted by Martino at fullback and Scott Mielke at halfback, the Schaumburg attack did its job simply and quietly.

Zonca, the 5-foot-11, 180-pound signal-caller, rallied the Schaumburg offensive squad around a potent wishbone attack that thrived on speed and deception. Zonca used his own quickness while rushing for 633 yards and nine TDs. He passed for two more scores and 487 yards on 52 completions and earned player of the year honors in the MSL.

"We didn't seriously talk championship until after we beat Prospect," said Ferguson. "Prospect had two wins at that time and they had pushed Hersey pretty hard the week before."

Schaumburg broke open a close game in the fourth quarter and coasted past Prospect, 33-8. But it was the following week's contest that showed Ferguson that his boys were top caliber.

"The really crucial game was against Rolling Meadows," the Saxon coach noted. "They were picked to be number one and they had really fine material. Plus they were really tough defensively. We felt that if we could knock them off, we could go all the way."

The Saxons edged Meadows, 10-9, on an 80-yard TD run by fullback Martino and a last-minute goal line stand. Then the Schaumburg machine pulled out an overtime, 43-37 victory at Forest View the following week.

The clincher came in a 21-7 win over Elk Grove. It gave the Saxons four wins in four weeks over a quartet of the best teams in the MSL.

Ferguson had heaps of praise for his entire defensive unit, most of whom will graduate in June. The coach will lose Jaffke, Martino, Bob Jones, Kevin Kristick, Mike Marx, Bob Viviano, and Jeff Boji, among others. Returning will be Scott Scholz, Gary Bolger, and Bob Bolger.

Ferguson had special praise for Jaffke and Martino, his all-conference duo. Jaffke, who is being recruited by several Big Ten teams, was named outstanding MSL lineman by the coaches.

"Jaffke gives 100 per cent both ways all the time. That's pretty tough to do when you're out there the whole time. He's a fine leader and he wants to be a winner in everything he does.

"Martino is consistent," Ferguson continued. "On offense you can always count on him to score and on defense he's always making the key tackle. He's probably the best all-around player I've ever coached."

The Saxons will also lose some key personnel on offense, where five players served double duty. Gone will be Randy Lloyd, Bill Bowers, Bob Nathey, and placekicker Roger Biver. But coming back will be Zonca, Mielke, Scholz, halfback Mike Christy, and sophomore running sensation Steve Knudsen.

Next season, the Saxons will be defending MSL champions after some lean years.

"It's so meaningful to put together a program from scratch," Ferguson said, "with all the players and coaches and the athletic director and principal working together. It's very satisfying to have cooperation from everyone — the community and the student body and everybody.

"We were always tabbed to lose, the coach concluded. "In a way I like being the underdog. There's only one way you can go — up."

The Schaumburg Saxons are at the pinnacle now. Next year they'll try to remain there.

Contest winner misses only two predictions

Only three seats remain at the Dec. 14 luncheon to determine the winner of the Rose Bowl trip as Paul McQuillen took the 11th edition of Paddock Publications' "Pick the Winners" contest.

McQuillen, sales manager for a brokerage firm, of 1213 Lonnquist in Mount Prospect, correctly selected all but two of the 20 college and professional games to stand alone ahead of 679 entrants, missing on Colorado and New Orleans Saints wins.

"This is only the first or second time I've entered the contest," McQuillen said. "I'm very familiar with pro and college football but earlier I'd look at the contest and pass it up because I'm not a follower of the high schools."

McQuillen will receive an AM-FM transistor radio for his efforts.

Upsets in the pro ranks again foiled most selectors with the college card being fairly predictable with some minor exceptions.

Baylor upended Texas Tech, California stung Washington State, Maryland trounced Duke, Georgia Tech rambled past Navy, Illinois edged Minnesota, Notre Dame survive a scare from Pittsburgh, Colorao surprised Oklahoma State, Vanderbilt slugged Tulane, Yale trimmed Princeton, Tennessee stopped Mississippi and Auburn outlasted Georgia.

Baltimore tripped Atlanta in the pro games for their second win, San Francisco demolished your Chicago Bears, Detroit nipped the New York Giants by a single point, Washington beat Dallas, Green Bay upset Minnesota, New Orleans clipped Los Angeles, St. Louis got back on the winning track against Philadelphia and Houston stunned Cincinnati for the second time this season.

Flames hockey club plans trip to Sweden, Finland

The Flames Hockey Club, for youngsters 10-to-14 years old, will compete against teams from three countries during a December international tournament being held in Sweden and Finland.

According to Robert Anderson of Arlington Heights, Flames president, competition for the Pastirol Cup in Helsinki, Finland, is the first international tournament for hockey players at this age level.

Teams from Scandinavia will journey to the United States next year for the second round.

The Flames are divided into two teams, Peewees and Bantams. Peewees are aged 10-to-12 while Bantam players are 13 or 14. Each club numbers 16 players. Ken Rzepecki coaches the Bantams and Mike Schmitt the Peewees.

Flames players will leave O'Hare International Airport on Thursday, Dec. 19. They'll compete that weekend in six games at Stockholm, Sweden, before leaving for Finland and Pastirol Cup games, Dec. 27-Jan. 1.

Golden retrievers unleash ability

by JIM COOK
Outdoor Editor

Forget the line about dog being man's best friend.

To the hunter — be it waterfowl, rabbit, pheasant or other upland game — the dog is man's only friend. Hunting birds without a canine is like trying to pan for gold in Salt Creek.

Some shooters try to rationalize the expense of housing and feeding an animal for maybe only a couple weeks worth of actual hunting.

If that's the attitude, it might be best to pan for gold in the form of a golden retriever.

Ray Arling of 2414 N. Windsor Dr. in Arlington Heights swears by the versatile breed. An authority on the golden-coated pooch that was originally imported from England, Arling has become involved in virtually every facet of the breed during 25 years of owning, training, breeding, showing and hunting.

"Goldens accomplish the dual purpose of providing an excellent and intelligent hunting dog and a family pet with a great deal of character and the kindest disposition," said the investor consultant and broker associate for C. Neal Realty.

The owner of a golden retriever need not be disillusioned by astronomical training fees. Even Arling encourages the dog's master to adopt a do-it-yourself policy.

"These dogs are so attentive and receptive to training that even an amateur can teach him everything the dog needs to know.

"We start our dogs at about four weeks," Arling said. "In fact, as soon as they open their eyes, they'll gladly retrieve anything you toss and they learn to love the water.

"I guess it's partly hereditary and partly instinct. At this young stage, we'll introduce them to pigeon, pheasant and duck wings. They relish playing with them."

In two months, Arling begins semi-formal training procedures.

"We'll take a sock, fill it with rags and spray it with any number of bird scents. Other objects we may use are cork-filled dummies or the soft bumpers they use for docking boats."

As obedience training expands, the dog becomes acquainted with vocal commands and a whistle. "By now, we begin testing his memory by releasing more than one simulated bird," Arlig said.

Further development consists of planting a bird in a field without the dog's knowledge and then asking him to retrieve it by the use of hand signals.

"We'll first send him in the general direction by pointing his head in a straight line to the target," he explained. "When we release him, he'll either keep going until he picks up a scent or he'll turn around and look for another signal. By waving our hand either to the left or right, he'll follow directions."

Goldens are also a necessity around water. Their near water-tight undercoat enables them to endure the shock of plunging into a sometimes frigid bath for a downed waterfowl.

Obviously, the dogs are invaluable in a duck blind.

"Sometimes all you have to do is watch their eyes," Arling said. "They'll tell you if there are ducks in the area. Their warning in the field for pheasant, for example, is their tail. Normally, it wags from side-to-side, but when they get ready to flush a bird, their tail is going crazy."

While Arling's association with golden retrievers includes working with three champions, he readily admits that there are exceptions at the other end of the scale, too.

"You'll run across the dog that is gun-shy or refuses to work for you, but they're rare," he said. "I've seen people take their young dog out for the first time and start shooting over them. Who wouldn't be scared?"

Arling recommends the use of .22 caliber blanks at a distance, initially. The use of heavier ammunition at closer ranges should be introduced gradually.

"The dog's breeding is perhaps the best measuring stick of how he will develop. If the dog has a sound background, there should be no trouble in training procedures if executed properly. Some dogs have stronger water qualities while others are exceptional in marking (finding birds) ability.

These dogs do not respond to corporal punishment or severe corrective measures as a means of instilling obedience, desire or work habits. They react by the tone of your voice.

"Often simple encouragement, either vocally or by clapping the hands, is all the priase they need. Their reward is pleasing you."

Potential golden retriever owners can expect to pay in the vicinity of $150 to $200 from a breeder who will already be aware of the dog's temperament, qualifications and physical characteristics.

Arling recommends that the buyer make every effort to see the pup's mother and father before adding to the household. A visit to one of the numerous obedience and field trial clubs in the area is also strongly suggested.

After that, it's up to the new owner to mold the dog's life. A good bird dog is a premium, especially this year with the pheasant reproduction numbers almost half what they were last year.

JUST DUCKY. Golden retrievers have proven themselves as valuable field and water dogs, but their temperament also makes them ideal house pets.

GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY. One of the best weapons in a duck blind is a good bird dog. Ray Arling of Arlington Heights believes the golden retriever provides one of the best combinations of sporting and hunting dogs.

Waterfowl hunting improves as major migrations begin

Recent weather has generally been variable with cold fronts pushing birds farther down the Mississippi Flyway and substantial rains adding much-needed water in some areas. Mid-flyway regions are experiencing good build-ups of mallards, according to The Wingwatcher, a migratory waterfowl report.

ILLINOIS

Water conditions are much improved as a result of good rains. A major migration into southern Illinois occurred Nov. 3-4 and another movement into the state was noted Nov. 10-11. Surveys Nov. 5 tallied slightly over one million ducks, approximately half of which were mallards. About 244,000 coots were counted while Canada geese numbered 129,000 and blue-snows, 2,500.

WISCONSIN

Weather has continued mild with occasional cold nights and some light rain in southern areas. Food is gone on many state areas and water levels are low with many grass fires reported.

Canada goose populations continue to decline statewide. Horicon National Wildlife Refuge contains 95,000 Canadas and five other areas totalled 11,500.

Large duck concentrations are reported on the Mississippi River pools. The large numbers of divers in lower Green Bay reported two weeks ago have departed. Good numbers of scaup are present on Lake Winnebago and coots and widgeon are numerous on Rush Lake.

MINNESOTA

A major cold-weather system is presently moving through the state. Southeastern portions of the state remain very dry with a major movement consisting principally of Canada geese, mallards and scaup reported in early November.

Lac Qui Parle had 35,000 Canada geese on Nov. 9. Counts on four other areas totalled 4,600. Duck populations generally are low. Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge has 15,000 mallards, 14,000 scaup and 4,000 widgeon.

MICHIGAN

Migrations have resulted in a general build-up of diving ducks, with substantial increases in canvasbacks. Shiawassee National Wildlife Refuge has 15,000 Canada geese and 43,000 ducks. The Allegan state game area has 12,000 Canada geese.

Scaup numbering 41,700 were present on the lower Detroit River and Lake St. Clair had 50,650 canvasbacks. Counts at the Fishpoint State Game area totalled 18,000 ducks and 3,500 geese of which half were blue-snows.

IOWA

Although surface water conditions remain poor, food conditions are good. The first major mallard and diving duck migration occurred Nov. 2-3. The first real build-up occurred after that time, but many ducks continued to move on through the statein spite of mild weather and abundant food. Populations now include 144,000 blue-snow geese, 155,000 mallards and 2,300 diving ducks.

Choosing the proper dog food

The abundance of dog foods on supermarket shelves makes it difficult to choose the proper dog food unless a dog owner takes a few moments to read the label.

By reading the labels, the owner can determine if a food is intended to supply the dog with a complete, balanced diet, if it is intended to be mixed with a complete food, if it should be fed occasionally as a supplement or if it should be fed as a treat or reward.

With the nutritional guidelines established by the National Academy of Sciences-National Research Council, dog food manufacturers know that every dog needs certain proteins, fats, carbohydrates, vitamins and minerals. These elements are also required in proper ratio to maintain a balanced diet.

Before a dog food can be marketed and advertised as "complete and balanced," the manufacturer must prove that the food meets the accepted guidelines established by the Association of American Feed Control officials and the National Research Council.

Time to pick a puppy —

Two basic errors should be avoided when adding a puppy to the family circle during the holiday season. The first error — making the purchase a spur-of-the-moment event — can be avoided with thought, planning and some family discussions taking place beforehand.

Many questions must be resolved before actually purchasing a puppy. Where will be dog eat, sleep and play? When grown, will it be a large or small dog? Which family member will feed, train and care for it?

Even after answering these questions satisfactorily and buying the puppy, there's still the possibility of committing the second error — bringing the puppy into the home for the first time during the excitement of Thanksgiving, Christmas or any other day which takes the family from its normal routine. It's much wiser to introduce the pup a few days before or even after, when the household is much calmer.

Goldcoast K.C. match —

Rand Park Dog Training trial —

Rand Park Dog Training Club, Inc., will hold its 25th annual all breed, AKC licensed obedience trial at Elk Grove High School, Arlington Heights Rd. and Elk Grove Blvd., Elk Grove Village.

Novice, Open, Utility and Graduate Novices classes will be judged. General admission will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for children under 12. If you want more information, contact Ken Roovaart at 312-824-4815.

They cheated death with a prayer

by GREGORY GORDON

Camped on a wilderness island in northern Manitoba, Dave Ruch and Mike Carroll hunted for their food pack and found it — in the clutches of a polar bear.

Ruch, 26, and Carroll, 25, scraped together their belongings, took a quick snapshot of their uninvited guest and departed — leaving the food to the bear.

The two Minneapolis outdoorsmen had completed all but the last 20 miles of a daring 500-mile canoe trip from western Manitoba to Hudson Bay.

Hours later, their canoe capsized in seven-foot steep rapids, pitching them into the 40-degree water and numbing their bodies from the waist down. They rode out three more sets of rapids, clinging to the overturned canoe.

They finally crawled onto dry land — at the edge of the arctic tundra.

All they had left was a bag of raisins, a half pound of a high-protein soybean product, some instant milk, a battered canoe and their prayers.

The recent expedition along the Churchill and Seal rivers seemed ill-fated from the start. The trip was inspired by Greg Smith, 24, Minneapolis, who, with his brother, Lindsay, 21, completed a two-canoe brigade.

The early autumn journey started about 100 miles north of the tiny village of The Pas, the threshold of the sparsely populated Canadian wilderness visited by only five to 10 canoeing parties each year.

Within days, the weather turned foul. Whitecaps raged on the river. There was talk of turning back.

Then Lindsay developed a painful rash on his hands. He could no longer hold a paddle. The four reversed course and found refuge at a small co-op.

But Ruch and Carroll wouldn't quit.

They lashed their canoe onto a float plane and flew to the point they would have reached if all had gone well.

A week later, the polar bear came along while they slept and snow flurried about on one of hundreds of islands in the Seal River delta. Then the canoe capsized.

"Yeah, that's the kind of thing you can die from," Carroll said. "When your body temperature fluctuates more than five degrees, you're going to die.

"The water was maybe 40 degrees. That's when we were in the most danger We were both going into shock. We had slurred speech, we were having trouble thinking."

They stayed under their space blanket made of material the astronauts use for a day — eating a handful of raisins, a cup of instant milk and a mouthful of the soy burger product.

Then they paddled their battered canoe the last 20 miles to the bay, where they hoped to turn south to the village of Churchill.

Unexpectedly, the shore of the bay was lined with impassable tidal flats which made the waters too shallow for travel. They decided to pitch camp on higher ground.

Ruch scratched in his daily journal, "Looks like we'll have to be rescued if we're going to get out of here. We set up camp and will try to pick berries and attract planes. We are expecting people to get anxious after 10 days and today was the 10th day.

"God help us. We need him."

They waited on the shore of Hudson Bay for five days, spreading their international orange canoe spray cover for planes to see during the day, reading their survival book and drinking a lot of water.

They took turns standing on a large boulder near the bay, trying to spot a passing plane.

And they prayed.

On the fifth day, they cut down seven or eight tundrastunted trees and formed an arrow aimed at their campsite.

"We did it for two reasons," Ruch said. "To attract the aircraft and to keep from sitting around. It seemed to us that one of the biggest dangers in a situation like that was probably the psychological reaction."

Later that day they waved and caught the attention of a low-flying Canadian Coast Guard helicopter en route to a hydrological survey ship in the Northwest Territories. As it turned out, the pilot couldn't see the arrows from the sky.

"He wasn't looking for us either," Ruch said. "He was just passing by."

The pilot refused to transport Ruch's canoe back to Churchill, but Ruch and Carroll didn't care. They escaped with their lives.

The offshore powerboat racing season isn't over yet, but the international and U.S. titles are already locked up. Dr. Carlo Bonomi of Como, Italy, has amassed enough points to assure him the international title for the second straight year and Art "Snapper" Norris, a 23-year-old vice president of the Detroit Red Wing team, has an unbeatable lead for the U.S. honor.

Weekend shotgunners take over 10,000 Illinois deer

by JIM COOK
Ooutdoor Editor

A buck here and a buck there almost sounds like the beginning of an inflation story. But for Illinois' 57,800 deer permit holders, a buck here or there meant a shot during the three-day gun season that opened Friday at 6:30 a.m. and concluded Sunday at 4 p.m.

Not everyone got a shot, let alone a buck, but on the basis of the unofficial statistics compiled by the Illinois Conservation Department, more hunters cashed during the first half of this season than ever before.

The total for the three-day campaign (the split season continues Dec. 13, 14 and 15) was 10,363 which means that only one out of every 5.5 hunters brought back a deer.

Last year 13,726 deer were bagged or an average of one per every 4.5 hunters. But this season, nine new counties opened their doors to the shotgun deer season leaving only the six heavily-populated counties protecting Chicago closed to gunners.

As usual, the most successful region of the state was the southern zone where 4,746 deer were taken. Williamson County was Illinois' biggest producer with 1,054 bucks reportedly bagged while Pope accounted for 883, Johnson 393 and Union 341.

The central region of the state produced 3,518 deer with Pike County leading the way with 338 and Adams contributing 302. In the northern zone, where 2,099 deer were taken, Jo Davies County accounted for 418 deer and Carroll 286.

The party of Virgil Nelson, Hank Alsred and Frank Sukunda of Keeneyville, a small community outside of Bloomingdale and Hanover Park, was one of the luckier groups toting shotguns.

The trio accounted for two trophy bucks — one a six-pointer weighing 150 pounds dressed and the other a five-pointer weighing in at 130.

"We got them both at sunrise in Pope County near Shawnee National Forest," Nelson said. "We thought we'd be heading home with our limit (one deer each) by noon, but it turned out that they were the only two we saw in three days.

"The hunting pressure was pretty heavy, but the weather was ideal. The temperature got into the middle 50s by noon on opening day and settled into the 35-40 degree range at night.

"We really enjoyed ourselves this time. Last year, we didn't see a deer in three days."

Marring the statewide first segment of the season were two reported accidents, but fortunately no fatalities. Hunting violations were numerous with 530 arrests resulting.

The northern zone accounted for 245 incidents of breaking rules while the central area numbered 131 and the southern section 154. Most infractions were probably committed by hunters failing to wear the proper distinguishing orange or red upper garments.

Free skiing at The Galena Territory

The very successful cross-country skiing program at The Galena Territory begins its second year this winter and skiers are invited to tour the hills and woods near picturesque Galena in northwestern Illinois, free of charge.

Trails for both neophytes and expert tourers have been laid out at The Galena Territory, a 6,500-acre recreational land community being developed by The Branigar Organization, Inc.

The hilly and rolling terrain of the property and the mixture of vast open space and heavily-wooded areas make skiing there a truly unique experience.

The ski trails will originate from the new privately-owned Territory Club, which will also serve as the centralized facility for the cross-country skier.

Skiers are asked to make an appointment and register before taking to the hills. They should call Buzz Elton at 815/777-2800 or write him at The Galena Territory, Galena, Ill. 61036. Elton can also provide further information on the skiing program and future events.

Groups are encouraged to journey to The Galena Territory, but are also requested to make reservations in advance. The information center at the development contains rooms for films, lectures and shows, if needed.

The community is on U.S. Route 20 and five miles east of Galena, a town of restored Victorian homes and antique shops that draws visitors from across the United States. The Galena Territory is about 15 miles north of Chestnut Mountain, a popular downhill skiing area.

If driving from Chicago, motorists should take Interstate 90, which leads right into Route 20 and Galena.

Cross-country skiing is becoming one of the most popular winter sports. Some sporting goods retailers estimate that one out of every three pairs of skis sold in the United States are designed for touring, another monicker for cross-country skiing.

As downhill ski areas get more congested, outdoor enthusiasts are beginning to appreciate the advantages of Nordic-type skiing. It can be done nearly anywhere there's snow. Ski touring is relatively inexpensive, great exercise and safe for all age groups.

A set of skis, bindings, shoes and poles usually costs less than $100 compared to the several hundred dollars for downhill gear. Clothing — outer wear in thin layers that can easily be put on or taken off — is less expensive. Nor do Nordic skiers have to buy lift tickets or stand in long lines to get to the top of a hill.

Cross-country skiing is great exercise because it is essentially walking or running on skis. Specially-waxed touring skis allow you to go up small hills almost as easy as you ski down them.

Beginners learn quickly and can enjoy the scenery at their own speed. The more skilled skiers can cut back and forth or break trails for neophytes to follow. An expert covers 50-mile distances in less than five hours.

There is little chance of injury in Nordic-type skiing because the sport is done on flat or rolling terrain. Very few sprains or bruises are reported, much fewer broken bones. It's considered a safe sport for entire families in Norway, where active cross-country skiers range in age from five to 70.

Other winter activities planned at The Galena Territory include sledding, tobogganing, ice skating and snowmobiling. Overnight accommodations are available in and around nearby Galena.

Peak period for observing birds

Autumn, with its frosty nights and overcast days, has been with us for several weeks now. The peak of fall color has come and gone and the migratory waterfowl on their way south have been late in arriving this year. They ordinarily arrive about mid-Ocotber and stop for food and rest in the forest preserve lakes, ponds, and marshes.

They are here now.

Hundreds of mallards, pintails, teal and wood-ducks, hell-divers and coots, and herons of several kinds can be seen in the preserves, said George W. Dunne, president of the Forest Preserve District's board of Commissioners.

The best place to go to see these birds in passage is in the Palos Hills forest preserves. Some of the best places for observation are Longjohn Slough, at 95th St. and Willow Springs Rd. — or McGinnis Slough, where the Southwest Hwy. crosses U.S. 45 — or Saganashkee Slough at 107th St. west of Willow Springs Rd. and the many other msall ponds and marshes found in the area — and don't forget your field glasses.

While the waterfowl are resting and feeding, other small animals are searching for a cold-weather haven and food they can store to prepare for the winter cold and snow they must endure. They can't go south like their feathered friends.

"This is the time of year to enjoy the spectacular migratory event. It is one of the abiding mysteries of nature; how do the birds know where to go? Though the mystery may go unanswered, the event is all around us now for observation and enjoyment," said Dunne.

Why people fish

The Canadian Department of Environment questioned almost 1,300 salmon fishermen along the coast of British Columbia and discovered that the number one reason for fishing was to be outdoors.

The No. 2 reason was to take it easy and get rid of tension, No. 3 was to eat fresh fish while right behind, in order of importance, was a change from working pressures, the experience of catching a fish, to take family and/or friends out, to change from home pressures, to do something different and to enjoy solitude.

can comprehend reality. Kids appreciate knowing the truth.

Lyne recalls coaching at Hales-Franciscan in Chicago where youngsters sometimes grow up past their years. "I had this one boy who missed class. The next day he tells me he's sorry, that his mother had shot his father," Lyne said.

"It wasn't anything unusual for kids not to be in school because when they got off the bus, bullets were flying. So they just got right back on."

With that behind him, it is easy to understand why Lyne was not shook, rattled or otherwise in awe when his St. Viator Lions bore down upon this fall's inaugural IHSA playoffs.

"What's there to get so upset about?" he wondered aloud many times. "All the important games are behind now. If we don't win our conference, we don't even get this far. So we'll just go out and do our best. This should be fun, a reward for doing the job all season."

So the Lions claimed one victory in playoffs, eliminating Deerfield, then lost to Willowbrook, ending a 9-2 year punctuated by brilliant individual performances from kids who were no larger or faster than most. Usually, they were much smaller.

But St. Viator's little people had soul and personality. They were highly revved-up young men. They enjoyed playing the game. Anyone who couldn't discern that obvious fact wasn't looking very close.

Willowbrook, a team that deserved victory, that final, hazy afternoon, curtailed the Lions' state championship dreams. Had Viator won, after trailing by 22 points during the last period, it would have been amazing and probably a fluke.

But nobody had a long face afterwards because this team had accomplished much with incredible wins over Evanston, Hersey, Holy Cross and Deerfield. Their regular season loss, at St. Francis deSales, reached overtime.

So the Lions deserved to be proud. They WON nine games, equalling the area record set two years ago by then Mid-Suburban League champion Elk Grove.

They established a 13th consecutive winning season for Viator which boasts an illustrious 81-33-4 varsity history. Lyne, a trackman at Notre Dame in his more agile years, has won 30 games, lost seven and tied twice during four seasons.

Neither Lyne, Mahoney nor defensive coach Wayne Fiedler knew what to expect from these young men. Nearly 60 per cent of the squad were juniors. There was an all-new offensive backfield of quarterback Bobby Walsh and fullback John Breen plus running backs Joe Littwin and Jack Gracheck.

The greatest experiment was insertion of Walsh who had spent his junior season tackling quarterbacks from defensive safety. Now they asked him to be one.

Jim Lyne

Of course, it worked perfectly. Walsh threw 16 touchdown passes while completing 66-of-141 for 998 yards. He had 475 rushing and scored 50 points. Not to forget punt and kickoff runback duties plus some occasional time at safety.

Littwin, a substitute last year, gained 857 yards and played the Willowbrook game despite two cracked ribs. Breen led the East Suburban Catholic with 60 points (he totalled 66).

Senior Pat Bucaro caught no passes during victories over Evanston and Hersey, then erupted to lead Viator with 29 receptions for 534 yards and spent much of the season doubling at cornerback.

That quartet . . . Walsh, Littwin, Breen and Bucaro . . . plus defensive safety and sometimes receiver Pat Rooney were honored on the All-East Suburban Catholic team.

Mahoney built his offense line around one returner, center Tim Halas. He was Viator's only All-ESCC offensive lineman, despite young men like Marty Drazba, Vic LaMantia, Matt Hower, Steve Leahy and Larry Ostling who threw the blocks that gave Viator 302 points.

Defensively, it was no surprise that end Mark Michuda, tackle Scott Zettek and linebacker Mark Selvig were voted to the All-Conference team along with Rooney.

And you've got to appreciate cornerback Terry Frett, a young man who never played the game until this year, yet started 10 games after coming off the bench against Evanson.

But in many ways, it all comes back to the head coach. For weeks Lyne hedged on his team's abilities. Then when Viator beat Holy Cross by three touchdowns he finally said the Lions were a good football team who could play with anyone.

The man wanted football to be fun, so Viator threw its second annual Attila the Hun birthday party. At Halloween, the team got a pumpkin. The Lions worked together and won together. In defeat, they held together.

It was over now; Willowbrook had beaten the Lions and one week later would find defeat itself at the hands of mighty Glenbrook North.

The Lions had been back in their locker room for at least an hour. There was a knock at Lyne's door. Walsh stepped in and said, "Thanks, Mr. Lyne, for coaching us this year."

Lyne told the young man he'd been a good captain and that it had been a rewarding season for everyone concerned. They parted.

Not many minutes passed before Lyne was ready to leave. "I'm sick and tired," he said. "I want to go home and play with my kids."

He walked toward the door, then stopped for a moment to add, "Hey, let's get together sometime and have a few drinks."

Of that, The American Football Society would surely approve.

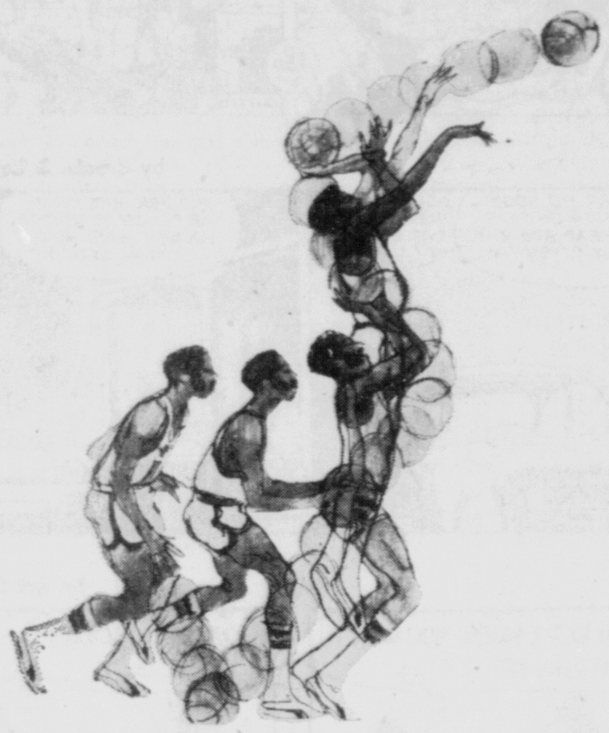
Basketball tips



by WALT FRAZIER
and IRA BERKOW

(Fourth in a series)

Everyone shoots the way he has to, the way that is most natural.

Cazzie Russell shoots a bullet, Bill Bradley shoots with a little arc, Jerry Lucas shoots a rocket launch and the ball starts soaring straight up like it has no destination.

I shoot on a line when I'm alone, with an arc when there's some cat climbing my chest. But all of us learned solid fundamentals when we were young. When we got bigger and better we learned to jive up our styles. Usually we had to — or we wouldn't get the shot off.

Except for shots off the drive, the jump-shot is the only shot I shoot, the only shot I've ever known. Basketball has become such a fast game, and the guys are so big and quick, that the jump-shot is the only realistic shot you can normally take.

You should get to know your shooting range, how far you can shoot and still be comfortable and reasonably accurate. Never force a shot.

Confidence, keeping yourself psyched up, is the thing shooters need. A good shooter never lets a miss or a blocked shot bother him because he figures next time it'll be his turn. But I'm a little different from most. I know when I'm off. So I stop shooting.

I usually give a slight fake before going up to see what my defensive man is going to do.

But when I know I can get my shot off right away, I make my last dribble a hard one to give my body an extra push into the air.

I'm balanced, usually with my right foot slightly in front of the left. Knees are bent and I jump up, but without straining. I think I shoot at the top of my jump. But Billy Cunningham shoots on the way down (and so did Elgin Baylor) and Kevin Loughery shoots on the way up. Whatever fits your style.

Trip ahead for Flames

In Finland, the Peewees and Bantams will each play 18 games against two teams from Finland, two from Sweden and Cornwall of Montreal, Canada.

The entourage will celebrate Christmas in Lappeenrantaan, Finland, and New Year's Eve in Helsinki.

At Helsinki, professional hockey teams from the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia and other European countries will be competing for the Ahearn Cup. Flames players will attend some of those games during their stay in Finland.

Anderson plus other interested parents organized the Flames last year. Beginning with a Peewee team in 1973, the group has expanded, now competes in an open league and plays more than 100 games a year. The team practices at the Randhurst Ice Arena four times a week.

"Not only is this a unique opportunity for these young people to engage in an international hockey match, but they also will meet prsons from other countries on a social basis," Anderson said of the upcoming trip.

"When people from this country can also will meet persons from other country at an early age, it leads to understanding of other people's habits and customs which so many of us do not achieve until a much later age. I'm glad our children and their friends will have that opportunity at this time."

Monthly payments total more than $4.5 billion

Social Security pays more than $4.5 billion a month in benefits to more than 30 million people, 10.7 million of whom are at least 72.

Seven million men and women 72 or older get retirement checks based on their own work under Social Security. More than two million are paid as widows and widowers, about one million as wives or dependent husbands and about 21,000 as dependent parents. In addition, about 357,000 are people 72 or beyond who are covered under a special provision of the law because they had little opportunity to earn Social Security credit during their working years.

People 72 or more who are working can earn $2,400 in 1974. But no matter how much they earn for the year, they can receive their full Social Security payment for any month in which they neither earn at least $200 nor do substantial work in their own business.

More than 15 million retired workers 62 or older get an average Social Security payment of $181 a month. For more information about Social Security, contact the Arlington Heights office, 120 W. Eastman, 255-7512.

My mother is in the hospital and her doctor says she can be released soon. But he said she will need daily skilled nursing care. We cannot give this to her at home and so we are planning to put her in a nursing home. Will Medicare pay on this?

Her hospital insurance (Part A of Medicare) can help pay extended care benefits for her care in a skilled nursing facility when:

- She is in a skilled nursing facility approved for Medicare payments and the facility participates.
- She is admitted because she needs additional care for a condition treated while she was in the hospital.
- She is admitted within a limited period — generally 14 days — after she leaves the hospital.
- She needs daily skilled nursing care or rehabilitation services. It also is important to remember that her extended care benefits stop as soon as her condition changes and she no longer needs daily skilled nursing or rehabilitation services.

Idiot Box

by Ed Landwehr

People call it one-eyed cyclop, idiot box, world's entertainer and so on. No matter what you think of it, you have a pretty good-sized investment in it. And like other appliances, if you service it at the first sign of trouble, it will last longer and give you the best return for the money spent.

Some TV signs like distortion, dull pictures & rolling frames may seem trivial but could lead to major repairs. Many of our customers phone at the first sign of these, and we can service them quickly right in the home.

Phone 255-0700 and Landwehr's Home Appliances will promptly get your set back to good picture quality. We'll assure your satisfaction.

See some of the latest nationally-advertised color TVs on our display floor at 1000 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights. It's time to think of one for the family's Christmas!

Social Security and you

My father gets monthly supplemental security income payments. He recently took a job as a messenger. Is it true that he would have to pay a penalty if he doesn't report the change in his income?

Payments can be reduced for not reporting — or for a delay in reporting — a change in income, living arrangements or other circumstances. The penalty is a reduction of $25 for the first failure or delay, $50 for the second, and $100 for each subsequent failure or delay. The penalty isn't applied to people's payments if they're not at fault for failing to report a change.

When my husband died three years ago, he was getting monthly Social Security retirement benefits. Next year I'll be eligible for monthly payments on his record. Will my payments be based on the amount my husband was getting, or will they include the increases in the amount of Social Security benefits since he died?

Your benefit will include increases that have been added since your husband's death.

It looks like I'm going to be laid off from my job. If I draw unemployment checks, will this affect any Social Security benefits I may be entitled to when I retire or if I become disabled?

No. These are two totally different programs. Unemployment compensation has no effect on the Social Security you've earned or Social Security benefits you may be eligible for in the future.

Copies of $165 million proposal unavailable

Hospitals budget secrecy decried

A frustrated Northwestern University student stepped to the microphone in the Cook County Board room Tuesday and protested the secrecy that surrounds the Cook County Health and Hospitals Governing Commission's proposed 1975 budget.

"There is a terrible lack of access" to the $165 million proposal. "My colleagues and I have yet to receive a copy. I spent four hours copying as much as I could by hand," said Sidmel Estes, who is studying the commission for a class project.

The Civic Federation added a similar complaint to a list of recommendations for changes in the budget. "It makes no sense to have a public relations staff and not have budget copies available," said Richard Elberfeld, an analyst for the taxpayers' group.

No copies of the proposed budget — which could increase county taxes about $2 per $10,000 assessed valuation — were available at the hearing and no personnel from the commission or from county — operated hospitals testified. County board members have not received budget copies.

ELBERFELD AND ESTES were the only persons who appeared before the commission's finance committee Tuesday. A similar meeting Monday night was cancelled when no witnesses appeared.

Committee chairman John Hadley said lack of preliminary budget information was caused by a fear of confusion. "This is not a final budget." If the proposal is "widely circulated . . . all sorts of figures and confusion" will begin when the final budget is approved by the commission, he said.

The county board is expected to review the controversial commission budget in December. Comr. Charles Chaplin said Monday that the budget wastes taxpayers' money.

"I have one simple question," Estes said. "What are you going to do with the $21 million (budget increase proposed for 1975)?"

HADLEY SAID THE increase is caused "by the working poor who are not eligible for public aid." Although the commission, which controls the County, Oak Forest and Cermak hospitals, attempts to collect all bills for service, patients without health insurance or private funds are financed by the county, he said.

The Civic Federation criticized a personnel increase of 193 staff members for 1975. The commission added 361 staff members this year, although the average number of daily patients had dropped from more than 1,800 to about 1,200 since 1969.

The federation also questioned proposed salary increases which range from 2 to 27 per cent. Comparison of wages and salary increases with federal statistics show "serious distortions in compensation levels when compared with the private sectors."

Patchwork Christmas

Fabric scraps make trims

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Christmas is much like fashion. Fads and new decorating ideas are introduced each year.

This season the focus is on patchwork. But then that isn't really so surprising. Renewed interest in quilting has emphasized patchwork. And inflation has turned it into an excellent idea.

People are beginning to watch where even their change goes today-and patchwork is easy on the pocketbook. It's simply "fashionable scraps."

Calico prints, dots, stripes and gingham work the best. And who doesn't have a collection left over from sewing, reupholstering or what not?

Donna Lichner of Rolling Meadows began fashioning patchwork decorations with scraps she had left over from making fabric flowers.

BUT DONNA WENT one step further. She saved the scraps left over from scraps. In addition to making patchwork wreaths, stockings and hostess aprons, she took what fabric remained, cut it into little squares and pasted them on plastic foam balls for tree ornaments.

"I don't like to throw anything away," said Donna.

To show how easy it is to work with patchwork, Mrs. Lichner has offered the following instructions to make a wreath and ornaments in keeping with Christmas decorating fads of 1974. And it doesn't take much time. Mrs. Lichner said the wreath can be completed in one evening. The tree decorations can be turned out in one's spare time.

The Christmas wreath is only one of the many ideas The Herald will be offering before Christmas to help readers "inexpensively" prepare for the holidays ahead.

There's always that satisfaction of being able to make something out of nothing. Besides, you save money.

PATCHWORK WREATH

Make a paper pattern measuring six inches wide and five and a quarter inches long. Using this pattern for size, cut out 16 rectangles from fabric scraps. Cut evenly and press the individual pieces. Don't throw out the leftover scraps. They can be used in making Christmas ornaments later.

On a table or the floor, lay out your design by placing the pieces of fabric in two long rows of eight pieces each (five and a quarter inch sides should touch each other). Arrange colors and fabric patterns to your liking. For best results separate the same colors or patterns. The top and bottom pieces of each row will later be joined together so do not duplicate there either.

When you are satisfied with the arrangement pin the individual pieces together in each row, right sides together. When finished you will have two strips laid out side by side, each six inches wide by eight pieces long.

Sew the pieces of each strip together by machine. Allow for one-half inch seam. Press seams down in same direction.

SEW STRIPS together on both sides. Press seams open and turn right side out. Keep ends open.

The wreath is now ready to be stuffed. Use foam, dacron, old nylon stockings ... whatever you might have around the house.

Pin the bottom of one end together so the seams run down the center. This will also keep the stuffing material from falling out. Be sure not to overstuff. The tubing should be completely filled but not feel hard when squeezed. Bring ends together to form a circle and pin together. Turn overlapping sides under so raw edges do not show. Hand sew together.

The wreath will still not look round, but don't be alarmed. To achieve the proper shape take pieces of rug yarn and tie around each joined section of material. Pull tight until tubing resembles individual tufts. Tie off yarn by knotting on the back side and clipping off ends. Repeat at each seam all the way around the wreath.

Sew a round drapery ring on the top back side of the wreath. The bottom joint is the one stitched together by hand. Add a ribbon bow to the wreath at that joint. Now it is ready for hanging.

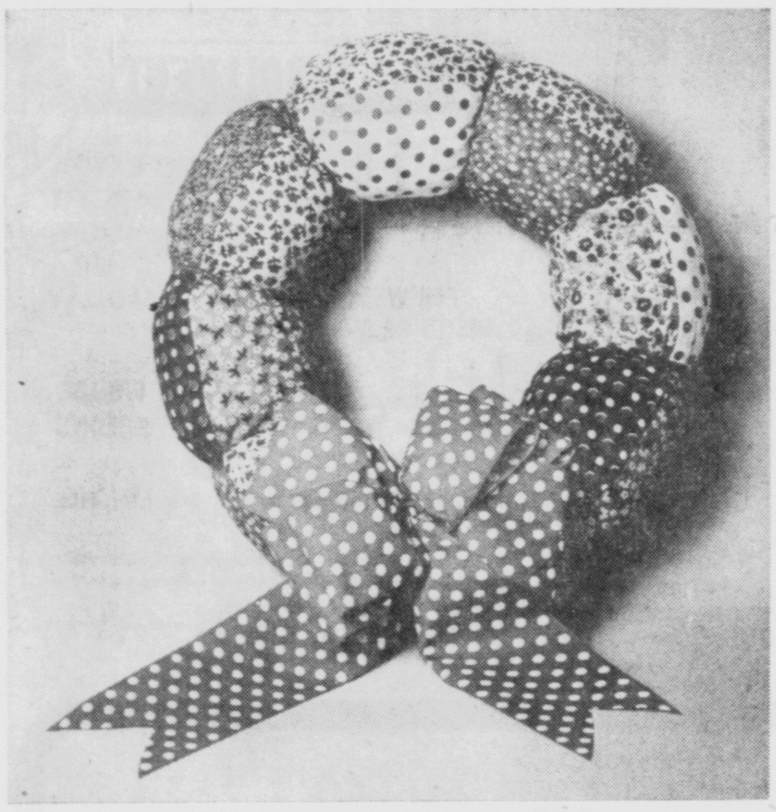
PATCHWORK ORNAMENTS

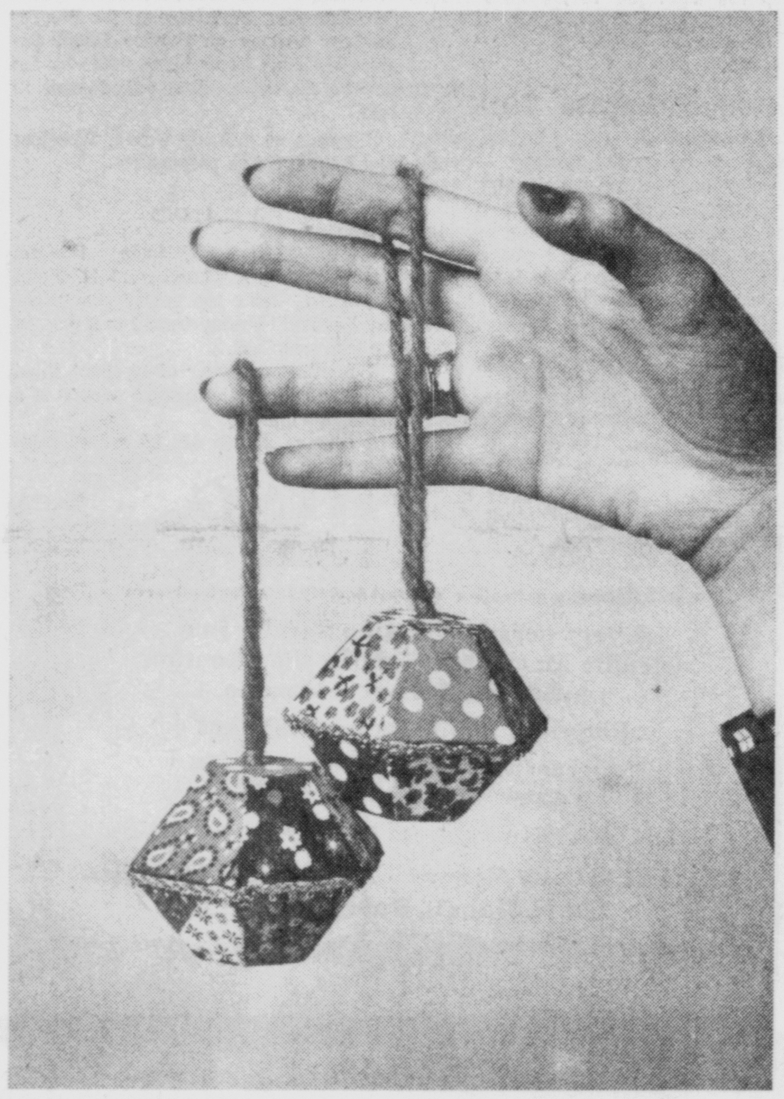
The scraps left over from making the wreath should all be trimmed down into small squares or really any shape desired. Glue each piece individually onto the plastic foam ball or base.

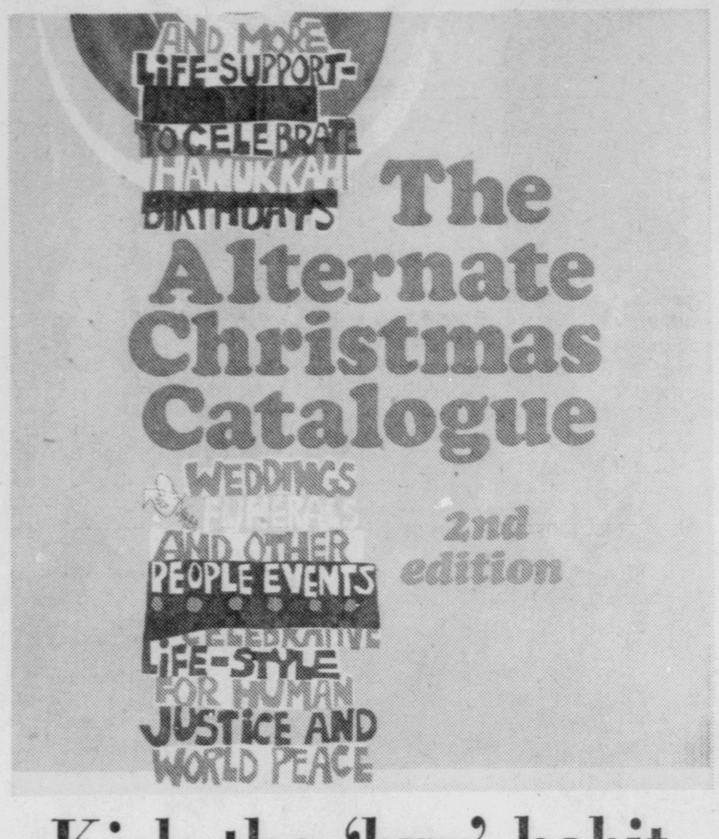
Mrs. Lichner recommends using Velverette, a thicker craft glue that will not soak the fabric. However any white glue will work. Use sparingly.

Trim or rick rack can be added with glue after the patchwork is all glued into place.

To hang, take a loop of yarn, knot once and fasten to ornament with a corsage pin.







Kick the 'buy' habit --try an alternative

by MONICA WILCH PERIN

Commercialization of Christmas — like the weather, everyone talks about it, but no one does anything about it.

This year, however, an inflation-ridden economy and the growth of "alternate Christmas" movements may deal Christmas sales its first serious blow.

The Christmas buying mania, which last year hit an estimated $9.3 billion, has been a tradition since the Victorian era.

But in recent years, the gaudy commercial explosion has reached such proportions that the national sensitivity seems at last to have been "grossed out." And this year the national pocketbook simply can't take the strain.

"Roses are things which Christmas is not a bed of them," wrote American poet Ogden Nash. Indeed, Christmas has become a veritable bed of thorns — which we have made for ourselves.

And so, a recent consumer survey by a Chicago bank reveals, people are determined this year to cut down on their spending. One of the ways some people are doing that is by celebrating an "alternate Christmas."

Alternate Christmas is a catalogue and a movement. The catalogue, first published last year by Mississippian Bob Kochtitzky, sold 19,000 copies and "stimulated the diversion of an estimated $350,000 into people- and earth-oriented projects," according to its editor.

THE MOVEMENT that has resulted is a bona fide decommercialization of Christmas, an arousal of people's awareness that their consumption is wasteful of human and earth resources and a commitment instead to spending some of that money and effort in "life-supporting" ways.

Kochtitzky and his staff of three, who have formed a non-profit organization in Washington, D.C., have gathered together a potpourri of ideas for Christmas giving that can cost you a lot less than your traditional Christmas expenditures and can benefit many people.

One section of the catalogue describes groups working for human welfare, social justice and the environment. To such charities as Heifer Project International, an organization that gives farm animals to needy people to help them produce food and income for their families, you are invited to give an outright donation, perhaps in the name of a loved one. They would then receive a card informing them of your "living gift" given in their honor.

Another section details various craft groups, cooperatives operated by poor people who produce and sell handmade items to support themselves. They range from Appalachians who quilt spreads and rugs and fashion corn shuck dolls, to inner city residents who make denim baby carriers, to artisans of Third World countries who handcraft jewelry and clothing.

Other ideas include organizations and publications of various special interests. The catalogue suggests giving a membership in an appropriate organization or a subscription to an interesting publication as a gift.

Anyone interested in celebrating Christmas in this uniquely rewarding way can order the catalogue for $2.50 from Alternatives, 1500 Farragut St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20011; or, it can be purchased from the St. James Women's Club boutique, The Holy Cow, at 837 N. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

HOWEVER, AS Kochtitzky observes, "It took years to build up to spending $300 on Christmas consumption; it'll take a while to kick the habit." For those not yet ready to make such drastic changes in their yule, The Herald suggests the following ideas for "winding down" Christmas spending:

- Name-drawings: Have a family name-drawing so that each person buys only one gift. A limit can be put on the prices of gifts, or everyone could write down with his name two or three items he needs, so that gifts are appropriate and useful.
- Give a service: Write "coupons" for back rubs, dishwashing, car-washing, lawnmowing, babysitting, shoe-shining, whatever is appropriate. The recipient of your coupons is then entitled to that service provided by you, free of cost, X number of times.

Or, purchase a service for someone, a service that is essential to the person and for which they normally must pay. This could be especially appropriate for elderly persons, who perhaps must rely on costly deliveries or hire house cleaners, gardeners, etc. The service could also be one you think a person would simply enjoy — music lessons, for example.

- Give gift certificates, so that recipients can purchase something they truly need or want.
- Give a gift of lasting value — a book, a framed photograph, a subscription to a publication; or a gift of deferred value — tickets to some future event.
- Give something of your own — a plant cutting, a recipe accompanied by a sample of the dish.
- How about limiting Christmas purchases to some careful selections for the children, and perhaps exchanging white elephants among the adults? After all, if someone would pay 50 cents for your old widget at a garage sale next spring, chances are someone on your Christmas list would find it useful or entertaining.

Women and children first

These expressions are legal

by JULIE MARTOCCIO

When you stop to think about it, TV is affecting some very important aspects of our everyday living. For instance, how about the impact it's having on our vocabulary?

Before Drs. Casey and Kildare took words like "scalpel" and "forceps" out of operating room medical mystique and tossed them into our kitchens, we had to be satisfied with ordinary words like "aspirin" and "Band Aid."

Then came faultless, suave Perry Mason doing the same thing with legal terminology such as "double jeopardy," "directed verdict" and "exhibit A."

Now comes Policeperson Angie Dickinson foresaking half-closed eyelids and looking squarely into a suspect's eyes while spouting words like "Miranda" and the "Fifth Amendment."

It's enough to make a viewer yearn for some legal aid. Well, wish no longer! The following TV script I've created (with apologies to all characters involved) should help you on the road to better understanding.

Two police officers are discussing a recent arrest.

Officer Law: The way I see it a "No Knock" just isn't going to work. So I wait till he comes out and I pull a "Stop and Frisk" on him. Sure enough, I find a hot "Saturday Night Special."

Officer Order: Yeah, I heard him yelling "I'm framed! I'm framed!" when you gave him his Miranda.

Officer Law: That clown's yelled "framed" so many times, he should be hung on a wall.

Officer Order: Very intelligent. Knows Latin. Two words. "I want a habeas!" he yells. "I want my corpus out of here!" Knows his rights better than his own name. Every time he's picked up he's got a different one.

Officer Law: Name or no name, he'll want his own "recognizance" again. And what do you bet this time he'll "cop a plea?"

Here's what the two officers were talking about.

- "No Knock" means that a police officer may obtain a warrant to break into a house without warning when the items he is seeking, such as gambling slips or drugs, may be immediately destroyed. This situation, Officer Law believed, did not warrant one so he skipped it and tried a "Stop and Frisk."
- A police officer has the right to "Stop" which means he can only ask the suspect what he's doing in the area and that he properly identifies himself, and "Frisk" which only permits an officer to pat down the suspect's clothing to find any concealed weapons such as guns, knives, etc.
- A "Saturday Night Special" is a cheap, commonly used snub nosed gun. "Hot" means stolen.
- "Miranda" means the arresting officer is duty-bound to inform the accused of his constitutional rights, that he's under arrest and anything he says might be used against him. While Miranda doesn't have Carmen in front of it, still it's the name of a person in a famous constitutional rights case. It also means that a person has a right to remain silent and to be represented by a lawyer he hires. Should he not be able to afford one, the court will assign one to him.
- Obviously the prisoner wants "out" and habeas corpus might help him in this situation. It's a writ that orders a person to release another who is being held so he may be delivered before a judge to determine whether that person is being lawfully held.
- The accused in this case would like the judge to release him without bail under his own "recognizance." If the judge believes the accused will voluntarily show up on the date he is told to appear, the request might be granted under certain circumstances.
- "Copping a plea" is a popular way of saying that the accused is plea bargaining which in effect means that he will plead guilty to a lesser charge, thereby obtaining a lesser punishment. Plea bargaining between the defendant and the prosecuting attorney is designed to hasten justice by cutting the time it takes to prosecute the case.

One closing word. Caution! If you should ever find yourself in a real life situation where these words must be used, see your lawyer!

An affair is no way to rate No. 1

by PATRICIA McCORMACK

Novelist Ruth Harris has no idea how many single girls at this moment have married men as lovers.

But she is certain of one thing: the married lover is the focus of the mistress' life. The mistress, however, comes about 35th on the married man's list of priorities. After wife, after children, after mortgage, after car, after . . . 34 items.

Mrs. Harris says her new novel, "Decades," bares the emotional wreckage that any woman can expect and will scatter if she takes a married man as her lover.

The novel, a Book-of-the-Month Club alternate selection, isn't preachy. But among the episodes as three generations of American women relive their love lives, Mrs. Harris says she spells out the horror of an affair with a married man.

"I saw and know so many single girls having affairs with married men," Mrs. Harris said in an interview.

"The horror of this being, simply, that you don't come second, you come 35th and 'way after his wife on his list of priorities.

"To a mistress, however, the lover's wife never is real.

"The novel is saying to these girls having affairs — don't just buy the prevailing image. Rather, face the truth about who you are as a person and what you want out of life.

"If you buy the image of affairs with married man being the 'in' thing, you will get hurt and someone else will.

"You can't twist yourself into an emotional corkscrew without some damage."

About herself, Ruth Harris says:

"I am 37 years old. I was liberated before it became fashionable and married after it became unfashionable.

"My next novel will be about what I call America's last dirty secret — our obsession with money."

Ruth Harris and her husband, Michael, also a novelist, were married four years ago. When she was younger she had an unsuccessful marriage. Before she scored with "Decades," she was, first, a book editor and then, or off and on, a novelist.

She would turn out a potboiler in three weeks, writing every night. Some of these were Gothic novels.

"I have rejection slips — every serious writer must learn that collecting rejection slips is part of the hard work of being a novelist," she said.

This is a vintage year for the Harrises. Michael's first novel, "Celebrity Doctor," has been bought by New American Library.

Ruth, a Sarah Lawrence graduate, 1957, has a $250,000 check for paperback rights to her book and is in the negotiating stage with movie makers.

The lifestyle of the Harrises bears no resemblance to the characters in their novels. They work at home — 15th floor apartment, good address, Manhattan.

Sweet potato dish nectar!

The homeline
by Dorothy Ritz

Along with the bird, Thanksgiving in this household always means candied sweets or mashed sweets covered with marshmallows. When Helen Hornby suggested a new way, I lost no time trying it. His highness went so far as to call them the best sweet potatoes he'd ever tasted. Boil a pound and a half of yams whole, then rub off the skins and mash the potatoes with margarine and brown sugar. Try to keep it as dry as possible as the next step is hard if the potatoes are too mushy.

Round some of the mashed potato around a large marshmallow, then roll it in coarsely crumbled cornflakes. Following through on this portion, I baked two of them on a flat, greased tin at 350 degrees until crisp, turning them once. The other four (stuffed and crumbed) went into the freezer for another meal. Nectar, really.

Dear Dorothy: Wasn't it you who wrote something about rhubarb being inedible at a certain time of the year? I have lovely plants in my yard that were healthy looking until frost, but I hesitiated to harvest them until I found out whether they were good or not. —Mrs. Alice L. Sample

There isn't anything the matter with rhubarb at any time — it's only the leaves that are toxic. At the markets I go to I only see rhubarb in the spring, and I'm surprised to learn it's still around.

Dear Dorothy: Surely this isn't a rare problem, but I've never seen anything in your column about how crayon marks can be removed from a blackboard. —Virginia Keeling

This is one of the simpler tasks mothers have to contend with. It will come off with either the finest sandpaper or steel wool — and even by using a solution of the old faithful, baking soda.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

'Consciousness' talk

Coffee klatsches, rap sessions, discussion groups, group therapy — and now consciousness raising, a new way for women to get together.

The concept of consciousness raising will be discussed on "The Search for Mental Health" Sunday on WJJD-FM (104.3) at 8 a.m. by Dr. Martha Kirkpatrick, assistant clinical professor of psychiatry at UCLA.

"The Search for Mental Health" is a weekly public service radio series produced by Forest Hospital Foundation for national distribution.

Better skin

Amy Green, recognized beauty authority and former beauty editor for such respected women's magazines as "Glamour" and "McCalls," offers the following collection of basic, simple steps to skin improvement.

1. Wash your face every night with a mild complexion soap to remove all traces of dirt and stale makeup.

2. After removing eye makeup, make a rich lather in your hands with a mild complexion soap and massage gently into your skin in upward, circular motions.

Start at the collarbone and work up to the front: then back of neck, across the cheekbones and jawline, lips, cheeks, side of face, forehead, hairline and even the ears. Special care should be taken with chin and nose which collect more surface oils from pores.

3. Rinse thoroughly with hot water using a clean washcloth, 15 to 20 times. Do not dry your face. Wring out the washcloth and use it to pat off excess water.

4. Apply a moisturizer while face is still damp.

5. Hold off on your night cream until just before retiring.

Amy Greene believes in soap and water, and that any woman, of any age, can realize a softer, smoother skin by faithfully following a sensible facial care program.

Affair no way to rate No. 1

They get their hair styled together, go to the gym together, shop boutiques together and, in fact, say that togetherness is their lifestyle.

"We are apart maybe four hours — total — a week," said Michael, who majored in English at Brown University in Providence, R.I., graduating in 1954.

Their life is leisurely, neat and disciplined.

In the morning, breakfast is prepared at home — starting with the grinding of beans for brewing of the freshest coffee possible.

Then, maybe a walk and each retires to his or her study. The walls of Michael's study are covered with bookbinder paper — a print of squiggly lines in muted fall colors.

When either one has a problem with the writing, the other is consulted.

"I have the advantage," Michael said. "I have in residence one of the best book editors."

EVERYONE HAS THE HOLIDAY SPIRIT AT CRAWFORD'S

For a Happy Life

It's fun in November to:

1. Talk to yourself about your good points. Appreciate yourself!
2. Think of ways to make Thanksgiving more meaningful this year.
3. Get behind the charitable projects your favorite organization is planning.
4. Try some of the recipes that you find from time to time in this newspaper.
5. Thank your husband for being the person he is.
6. Learn how to make old-fashioned beauty lotions right in your own kitchen using fruits and vegetables.
7. Pull the shades and draw the drapes at sunset to help conserve heat.
8. Consider this by Henry David Thoreau: "The only way to speak the truth is to speak lovingly."

She marries boy across the street

Susan Marie Panesi and Glenn S. Poyer had been neighbors for four years when they decided it was better to get married and be together instead of commuting back and forth across the street.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy J. Panesi, 1831 Willow Ln., Mount Prospect, Susan and Glenn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Poyer, 1828 Willow Ln., were married Oct. 26 in St. Raymond's Catholic Church, Mount Prospect.

The 3 p.m. service was double ring with Susan wearing a satin-faced nylon organza gown with tiny pearls on floral prints. The gown featured a princess front panel with yoke and sleeves of Cluny lace. The same lace was used for the ruffle and flounce on her chapel train. Her fingertip veil, trimmed in floral lace and pearls, was made by Mrs. Poyer, and she carried white roses, white carnations, red roses and baby's breath.

KATHY SZYMNY, Mount Prospect, was Susan's maid of honor wearing a midnight blue velvet gown trimmed with old-fashioned lace. She carried pink roses, white carnations and baby's breath. The couple's sisters, Josette Panesi, 7, and Julie Poyer, 5, were flower girls. They were also in midnight blue velvet gowns, and they carried white baskets with pink and white roses, carnations and baby's breath.

The bride's brother, Ricky Panesi, assisted the priest.

Dale Carter, Mount Prospect, was best man, and ushers were the bride's cousin, Robert Lafferty, Vernon Hills, and the groom's brother, Arthur.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn S. Poyer

The newlyweds left on a honeymoon in Wisconsin and Florida following a reception for 125 guests in the Arlington Inn Restaurant.

Both the bride and groom are graduates of Forest View High School. Glenn is in the Navy and expects to be stationed in Florida for the next three years.

You paid $2.50 too much for your last grocery order.

We invited 6 more ladies, who had just finished shopping at The Treasury Supermarkets, to go out to various other supermarkets and buy their very same orders all over again (on us, of course).
The results: The lady who saved the most saved $3.66 buying the same order.
The average savings of all 6 women was $2.40 on orders averaging $40.40.
Shouldn't you change stores? Shop The Treasury Supermarkets.
